

LEGGE OFFERS WHEAT FOR JOBLESS

3 TRAPPED BY COLLAPSE OF RAIL TUNNEL

Caboose Shattered by Debris in Tragedy Near Steubenville, Ohio

TWO ARE BELIEVED DEAD

Communication Established With Man Imprisoned
Under Big Boulder

Steubenville, Ohio.—(P)—One of three trainmen trapped in a cave in one of the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad tunnels at Adena, 25 miles southwest of here today, was dead when removed from the shattered caboose at noon today. He was identified as Jerry L. Sells, 40, a conductor of Dillonvale.

Rescuers attempting to remove the trainmen have established communication with Al Romano, who told them he was held fast by a large boulder.

Rescuers said efforts to get a response from E. E. Duga, the other victim, were unsuccessful, and it was believed he was dead.

Officials of the company said that at least 300 feet of the tunnel at the east end had fallen in. The tunnel is between 800 and 1,000 feet in length and goes through a hill about 200 feet high.

Entrance was gained from the west end and workmen reached the caboose, officials said, but it only been crushed beneath the slide. Only the eastern portion was said to have fallen in.

The train of 25 cars had backed about 800 feet into the tunnel when the cave-in occurred. The tunnel was located on a branch line of the railroad about a mile and a half from Adena. The branch leads to the Clarkson coal mine, near Harrisville and was used daily by the local freight in connecting with the mine.

"BUGS" MORAN FREED
ON BOND OF $10,000

Chicago.—(P)—George "Bugs" Moran missed a night in the county jail by inches, and enjoyed 23 hours of liberty to the surprise of Judge John H. Lyle.

When Judge Lyle left his courtroom yesterday he assumed the former boss of the north side gangs was en route to jail. But someone presented the required $10,000 bond as Moran was being led to his cell and until Judge Lyle reached his desk today the manner of the gangster's release was a mystery.

On file in Judge Lyle's court was a real estate bond, duly approved by the municipal court and signed by Judge John Scabarro, Michael Schurle had scheduled property valued at $80,000 and encumbered by $30,000 mortgages.

"I shall examine the bond," the judge said.

Moran won his freedom just before 6 o'clock p. m. yesterday and at 5 o'clock p. m. today was to reappear before the court on the vagrancy charge. He asked the usual change of venue. Meanwhile the prosecutors were under court orders to look up other possible charges to file against Moran.

STICKLERS WILL STICK YOU—MAYBE

A farmer who wanted to have a number of pieces of chain welded together in a single length, got all mixed up on the price when the blacksmith told him it would cost one cent for every link cut and one cent for every link welded.

You'd get mixed up, too, if you knew the rest of the problem. And that very problem is coming to you in the form of a "STICKLER."

It appears in the Appleton-Post-Crescent today on page 3. Look for it and see if you can work the problem.

World Apart, Converse By Radio Phone

Kingsford-Smith in Australia, Rickenbacker in New York Exchange Views

Schnectady, N. Y.—(P)—Two famous aviators, Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith, the Australian who has flown around the world, and Eddie Rickenbacker, premier American war ace, talked with each other by radio telephone, half way around the globe, today.

The conversation was broadcast by WGY and the stations composing the blue network of the National Broadcasting company.

Atmospheric conditions were excellent. Martin P. Rice of the General Electric company staff opened the conversation between the two aviators.

WGY, near here, and 2MB at Sydney, he congratulated the Australian aviator on his successful flight around the world, and asked about the dangers of the trip. Kingsford-Smith replied that the dangers were not great, except that on part of the flight he was dependent on one motor where as usually he had three motors.

Then Rickenbacker, at New York, was out in. He asked the Australian what was most necessary for the establishment of transatlantic and trans-oceanic air service. Kingsford-Smith said that in his opinion the first thing needed was a plane with a cruising speed of better than 150 miles an hour. Rickenbacker told the Australian that a plane had been designed recently with a cruising speed of more than 170 miles an hour.

Kingsford-Smith said he intended to devote his time and energy to the business of air transport. Within a year, he said, an air service would be in operation between Australia and Tasmania, and he predicted that within five years there would be passenger and transport air lines making the trip between London and Sydney in 12 days.

ROBBER KILLED DURING JEWEL HOLDUP ATTEMPT

Philadelphia.—(P)—Two men attempted to hold up a jewelry salesman in the heart of the shopping district today and in a running pistol fire one of them was killed.

Twenty shots were fired, scattering a crowd that had filled the streets in the noon hour.

The salesman was Walter Hayman, who was about to enter the jewelry store of J. E. Caldwell and Co., Juniper and Chestnut streets. Two men backed him against the wall of the building. Hayman shouted and attracted the attention of Joseph McCabe, jewelry store guard, who attacked the men with his fists.

The hold-up men broke away and ran into the arcade of the Widener building in which the jewelry store is located. Policemen joined the chase and the fleeing men fired at their pursuers as they ran. Policemen opened fire and one of the men fell. He was removed to a hospital where he died. The other man escaped.

MICHIGAN PLANNING
BUILDING PROGRAM

Lansing, Mich.—(P)—Gov. Fred W. Green announced yesterday that a statewide program of public construction is being planned for the winter months to provide employment for as many men as possible during the period when jobs normally are at a minimum.

Tentative plans, as now drafted pending a series of conferences with heads of the various administrative departments, call for a continuation of highway work, usually abandoned with the advent of winter and of new construction and improvements at the various state institutions.

FIND BURNED BODIES OF TWO HIGH SCHOOL BOYS

Memphis, Tenn.—(P)—The battered and burned bodies of two North Carolina high school students lay today in a morgue, apparently victims of assassins who beat them severely and placed them on a pyre formed by embers of an Arkansas swamp campfire.

Both died in a hospital last night without regaining consciousness. Their skulls had been crushed.

The boys were identified by notes and a diary found in their pockets as Burton Hensley and Woodrow S. Wilson of the Little town of Bald Creek in the mountains of North Carolina. Advice from Bald Creek said they left their homes eight days ago presumably on a hitchhiking trip to the west.

Discovery of the two youths, their bodies seared by the flames of the still burning campfire, was made by two wood choppers late yesterday.

Says Stepmother Admits Slaying

Businessmen Behind Organization to Raise Money for Unemployed

A comprehensive survey of unemployment and the service rendered to poverty stricken people in this city by social welfare agencies has been conducted here the past week by a group of business and professional men.

The survey has revealed that the welfare agencies are already overburdened with demands for help and they all report that the prospective demands of this character during the coming winter will greatly exceed their present capacity to be of assistance, according to J. P. Frank, one of the leaders in the survey study.

As a result of this survey an organization has been perfected to raise $25,000 to meet demands for help for the next 12 months period, including the needs of the Salvation Army.

F. N. Belanger, district manager of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. has been named chairman of the organization that will undertake to raise the funds.

GET SOCIAL WORKER

As a result of conferences the past week to discuss the situation here, Lewis L. Alsted, has offered to pay the salary and expenses of a social service worker for a period of one year, and has authorized a committee appointed for that purpose to engage the services of a worker.

At a meeting early this week attended by representatives of the German Ladies Aid society, the Catholic Apostolate, the Jewish Aid society, and the city Relief society, the city nurse, school nurse, and a number of business men, it was the unanimous opinion that the best way to work out the problem here is through a paid social worker. It will be the duty of the social worker to investigate and pass upon the needs of those who seek aid.

HELP SALVATION ARMY

The needs of the Salvation Army, about to make its annual drive, were presented and it was decided that the Army will cooperate with the new group in the campaign and also by clearing its needy cases through the central clearing house established for all welfare agencies in the city.

The organization behind this movement are B. J. Zuehlke, J. P. Plank, Charles A. Boyd, D. P. Steinberg, L. J. Marshall, L. L. Alsted, J. P. Frank and F. N. Belanger.

MEXICAN FLOOD CLAIMS
25 LIVES DURING WEEK

Mexico.—(P)—Tuxpan, Nayarit, counted 25 persons dead today in the floods which swept that city the first half of the week after torrential rains such as fell over most of central Mexico.

The towns of Bayona, San Felipe, and Cerroblanca in Nayarit also were inundated and thousands of cattle drowned. Crops were ruined over a large area. Medical squads have been sent out to combat disease in the flooded districts.

Reports from Vera Cruz say that losses in that state and Oaxaca probably will reach 3,000,000 pesos (about $150,000).

The city of Tlacoalpan, Vera Cruz was inundated and the municipal building and others partly collapsed. Tuxpan, Vera Cruz, also was flooded with considerable damage resulting.

EXPECT NORWEGIAN
PREMIER TO KEEP JOB

Oslo, Norway.—(P)—Premier Johan Mowinckel probably will continue as Norwegian prime minister when the new Storting opens its session early in the new year.

His entire present radical cabinet was given a new lease on life by Monday's parliamentary elections which returned 34 radicals to the Storting.

The cabinet will have some of its policies changed, however. One of the planks of the radical election platform was anti-labor legislation, so that it now must stand on its own feet without labor in the coalition. Since the conservative strength was greatly strengthened in the election no radical reform legislation is expected.

The new Storting will have: Labor, 47; Conservatives, 44; Peasant party, 25; and Radicals, 34.

Queen Victoria Didn't Like Grandson, Kaiser Wilhelm

London.—(P)—Letters of the late Queen Victoria describing her grandson, Kaiser Wilhelm II as "a hot-headed, conceited and wrong-headed young man, devoid of all feeling," were among the revelations made today in a book composed from confidential royal sources including the archives of Windsor castle.

Victoria also said that Gladstone, then prime minister, "will ruin the country if he can," the documents disclose.

The volume, edited by George Earle Buckle and published by the firm of John Murray shows that King Albert's widow had decried viewpoints of her own, whatever have been the views or intentions of the government's officers of her time.

Permission to publish these royal secrets, hidden from the world for forty years, was given by King George and, in the case of some of the letters, permission was said to have been secured also from the former Kaiser at Doorn.

Regarding Wilhelm, she wrote: "How sickening it is to see Willy, not two months after his beloved and noble father's death, going to banquets and reviews: It is very indecent and very unfeeling."

INVOLVES SEYMOUR IN GROCER'S RACE

Stebbins Testifies That Former Party Leader Probed Availability

Lincoln, Neb.—(P)—The name of Victor Seymour, who until recently was associated with Republican national senatorial campaign committee headquarters in Denver, was linked with the filing of the second George W. Norris for the Republican senatorial nomination in Nebraska last summer by the testimony today of State Treasurer W. M. Stebbins before Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the U. S. senate investigating committee.

Stebbins, a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination which was won by Senator George W. Norris, testified that after he approached Seymour the latter investigated the availability of the second Norris, a Broken Bow grocer.

Seymour, Stebbins said, later called him and said Norris wanted a $500 bond and $50 in cash.

Stebbins said he went out and got the bond and returned to Seymour's office where he "left it" on the table before Mr. Stebbins.

The state treasurer said he had heard rumors that an effort was underway to find a man named "Stebbins" to file against him.

Questioned regarding his motive in giving the bond to Grocer Norris, Stebbins testified he believed Senator Norris was not a good Republican and that he believed this filing would cause Nebraska's senior senator to withdraw from the race and run for reelection as an independent.

Stebbins testified that he knew of no other political activities in connection with the primary campaign on the part of Mr. Seymour.

Stebbins said he had no knowledge of a straw vote taken in Nebraska last spring to determine the best man available for the United States senate.

Walter Head, Chicago and Omaha banker who has announced that he financed the testing of the poll by Seymour, was scheduled to testify at the hearing late this afternoon.

PRIESTS FORCED TO FLEE
DURING ADVANCE OF REDS

Shanghai.—(P)—Several American priests were forced to flee for their lives when Communists carried their bloody war against foreign and Chinese Christians to the Lazarist mission at Jaochow, Kiangsi province, last week, Chinese press dispatches said today.

Details of the raid, which took place Oct. 14, were sent by Father Verdini, Italian priest, who escaped from Jaochow.

He said Bishop Sheehan of Streator, Ill., director of the Jaochow mission, fled to Fuchow, 100 miles south, where last Tuesday Father Verdini believed the bishop was safe "but in a highly dangerous red infested area."

Stationed at Jaochow assisting Bishop Sheehan were three American priests—Leo Moore of Perryville, Mo.; Father Alenburgh, Milwaukee, Wis., and Father L. J. Coyle of Lincoln, Neb.

Father Verdini believed Father Alenburgh had fled eastward from Fuchow Tuesday, possibly taking refuge in Wuyuan, on the southern border of Anhwei province, where a few native Christians lived.

WOMAN TAKES FULL BLAME, SLEUTH AVERS

But Mrs. O'Loughlin Tells Jail Matron She Knows Nothing of Murder

Denver.—(P)—Captain of Detectives Bert Clark announced this morning that Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin after prolonged questioning had admitted she alone was to blame for the death of her 10-year-old stepdaughter, Leona, whose body was found in the Berkeley park lake Oct. 14.

Clark said he had obtained the admission from Mrs. O'Loughlin after a grilling of six and a half hours. The woman's nerve broke and she was carried to her cell in the matron's quarters of the city jail on the verge of a complete breakdown.

"Neither Mrs. O'Loughlin nor myself was in condition to go into details when her admission came," Captain Clark declared. "I expect to get a more detailed statement from her later on, when she has had time to collect herself."

Captain Clark, worn out himself by the strain of the protracted questioning, went to his home.

The alleged admission of Mrs. O'Loughlin concluded her sixth extended questioning by officers, one session having been at the bed of the dead child. She was grilling yesterday by her husband, Leo O'Loughlin, a city detective.

"She admitted responsibility," Captain Clark said. "Her first statement of admission was: 'I'll take the blame; I'm the one that has to suffer.'"

SAYS SHE KNOWS NOTHING

After Mrs. O'Loughlin was taken from the room of Captain Clark she was given a cup of hot beverage by Mrs. Suzanne Armstrong, matron of the jail and seemed to recover from her collapse.

She remarked to Mrs. Armstrong that she knew nothing of the murder of her stepchild. Within ten minutes she was asleep.

Frank O'Loughlin, brother of Detective O'Loughlin, was taken into custody for questioning today. Ray Humphreys, investigator for the district attorney, said O'Loughlin had been shadowed by officers for four days.

Good Values Encourage Sensible Spending Here

Having run through the list of retail enterprises at his disposal, Wednesday, the scribe sat pondering about his next move. When the scribe ponders, that's an event.

Even the office, hardened to nearly anything, was startled. Somebody ran out and brought the scribe a glass of water. But the scribe didn't want it. He had one the other day.

"I see," he said, "where they're putting on a patriotic spending event in Muskegon, Michigan, to bring prosperity back. Ho-hum."

"What d'ya mean—'ho-hum'?" asked the man at the next desk who used to have a girl friend in Muskegon.

"I mean that in the Appleton area it isn't a matter of patriotism, necessarily, it's a matter of good sense."

"Good sense?" asked the man at the next desk as he wondered whether he had remembered to change to the other trousers of his new two-pants suit that morning.

So the scribe propounded his theory.

Every merchant in this territory, realizing the trend of economic affairs, has made a particular effort to increase the value of every product in his store.

The manufacturer, in instance after instance, has aided by making a better product, by lowering the price, or both. Where this is not possible, the merchant himself has cut the margin to encourage buying.

Appleton, of course, has not totally escaped the national depression. Yet Appleton is probably in better condition than most cities, and Appleton savings accounts are at an unusually high peak.

Which means, of course, that not all the dollars in town have been used up. Appleton merchants, through their efforts, are encouraging sensible spending—the type which helps to bring back prosperity without a future hangover.

Young President Of China Converted To Christianity

Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek Baptised Methodist at International Settlement

Shanghai.—(P)—General Chiang Kai-Shek, youthful Nationalist president of China, was baptized a Christian today.

The branch of the Christian church into which Chiang Kai-Shek was baptized is Methodist.

Chiang and his wife arrived early this morning from Nanking. He went immediately to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Soong, in the International settlement, and there the simple ceremony was performed by the Rev. Z. T. Kuang, Chinese pastor of the Young Allen Memorial church.

The pastor asked the president whether he sincerely desired to be a Christian. Chiang replied that he did. Whereupon the pastor sprinkled water upon the young president and admitted him to the Christian church.

Only a few intimates of the president attended the ceremony. They included his brothers-in-law, T. V. Soong, minister of finance, and T. L. Soong, chairman of the Whang-Po conservancy, and the foreign minister, C. T. Wang. All are Christians.

The baptism had been kept a secret and the accomplished fact has startled all Shanghai and Nanking. Outside the family circle, none has the slightest idea of the president's intention.

The president's baptism was regarded as a blow at the extremists who are hunting down Christians in Kiangsi province and elsewhere in the Yangtze valley.

Persons who have studied China's problems expressed the belief that his action was likely to form a striking precedent and have far-reaching effect upon the future of the government of China.

The conversion of Chiang Kai-Shek, the 43-year old president of China, means that two Chinese war lords now are adherents of Christianity. The first was Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, long termed "the Christian general."

Chiang Kai-Shek first gained fame in 1925 and 1926 when he swept over China with a Chinese army in a revolution that established a new republic with himself as the head.

An instance is told how Chiang once spared a Christian mission which had done him a favor. This was in 1925 after a dentist at the Yale-China mission at Changsha had extracted a painful wisdom tooth for the young general. He was so grateful that when his armies marched through the country he ordered that the Yale buildings be spared.

Aldorf, Germany.—(P)—The total of bodies recovered from the Anthon mine following the disastrous explosion of Tuesday reached 251 this afternoon. The search for more victims continued.

TWO VIEWPOINTS

Secretary Davis, a member of the cabinet relief committee, said unemployment aid must be handled from two standpoints.

"We have a group of single men and women who are without work and who have reached the end of their resources and must be helped," he said, adding:

"But more important than this group are the family groups in which the breadwinner is unemployed."

U. S. Industrial Leaders Think Business On Upgrade

BUSINESS NOW PAST TURNING POINT, REPORT

Recovery Will Not Be Spectacular, Speakers at Conference Believe

Chicago (P)—A picture of optimism for the economic future was laid before the American people today by the conference here of leaders of major industries in the United States.

While there will be no spectacular recovery of business, in the opinion of speakers at the conference, the "turning point" has been reached and this in itself was described as a step toward a more solid future.

The conference, the seventh of its kind held under the auspices of the University of Chicago and the American Institute of Meat Packers, was attended by more than 40 of the nation's chief industrialists, business men, educators and others.

L. J. Tabor, master of the National Grange, said: "Agriculture is at the turn of the road. Despite drought and the decline in prices, the farmer has learned to look less to government and congress and more to himself."

Organization of agriculture, establishment of a farmer-owned and controlled merchandising system, and equality of taxation, were advocated by Tabor as means of restoring the farmer's purchasing power.

Opinions that American industry has solved the technical problems of production, and that American standards and wages have come to stay, were expressed by other speakers.

Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the board of the chamber of commerce of the United States said that adoption by Europe of American standards of living would absorb surplus stocks that are depressing trade markets. He blamed tariff wars for economic distress.

He spoke at the conference's annual banquet last night at which Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, also outlined his views, which included a program of high wages, shorter hours and more leisure to make consumption catch up with production.

A note of optimism was also given by President Hoover who sent a message in which he said: "The growing relationship between education and business is a happy augury for both and will lead to enlarged usefulness in both spheres of activity."

U. S. STILL LEADS

M. S. Sloan, president of the New York Edison company, said that the unchallenged industrial leadership of the United States has been held for a number of years, continued even during the present depression. America remains better off socially and industrially than other nations, he added.

Good times ahead for the iron and steel industry were seen by George M. Verity, president of the American Rolling Mills company. He pointed out that production of steel ingots and castings had increased 14,000,000 tons and predicted on the basis of expansion of natural gas piping a peak production of 65,000,000 tons in the next decade.

"More capital saving must go to improving the living standard and less into productive facilities. Wages and standards must be raised, not lowered," said another speaker, General Robert E. Wood, Sears, Roebuck and company president.

Radio was acclaimed by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company, as the most important factor in stopping the farm-to-city movement.

Many of the industrial leaders signified concurrence in the statement of Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., vice president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, that "the condition of our country is now well on the road to correction."

"To whom?" asked the service station attendant.

"To Ernest Murphy of Eau Claire."

"But I don't know Murphy."

Police were called and they found Chicago authorities wanted Tom for purchasing an automobile on the "charge it" plan.

BISHOP WELLES TO PRESIDE HERE AT CHURCH PROGRAM

Episcopal Church to Observe Seventieth Anniversary on Oct. 31

The Rt. Rev. Reginald H. Weller, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of the Fond du Lac diocese of the Episcopal church, will be the presiding officer at the seventieth anniversary program of All Saints Episcopal church Friday evening, Oct. 31.

Bishop Weller, who this year celebrates the thirtieth year of his consecration as bishop, was born in Jefferson City, Mo., on Nov. 6, 1867. He received his early education in Jacksonville, Fla., where he spent his boyhood, and at the University of the South at Sevens, Tenn. He was ordained deacon in the church in 1890, after which he founded Grace church of Ocala, Fla. In 1894 he was graduated from Nashville and was ordained to the priesthood that year by the Rt. Rev. Welles, bishop of the Milwaukee diocese. He was immediately assigned to the Christ church at Eau Claire, where he served as rector for four years. Later he was rector of St. Mathias church at Waukesha for 16 months, rector of the Church of Intercession at Stevens Point for two years, and in August, 1907, was elected bishop-coadjutor of Fond du Lac. He was consecrated Bishop in the Fond du Lac cathedral Nov. 8, 1909. Upon the death of the Rt. Rev. Grafton, bishop of Fond du Lac, on Aug. 30, 1912, Bishop Weller became bishop of the diocese.

Under Bishop Weller's administration the diocese grew so large that last year the diocesan council elected a coadjutor bishop to assist in the work. The Rt. Rev. Harwood Sturtevant, the coadjutor bishop, lives in Appleton.

Thompson Is Her Enemy, Ruth Claims

Chicago (P)—Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick today pointed to unsigned circulars she said had been sent to Negro voters as vindication of her claim to complete lack of political alliance with Mayor William Hale Thompson.

In a formal statement last night, the senate campaigner said that she had been advised that Mayor Thompson, leader of the Republican group known as the city hall forces, was responsible for distribution of the circulars, which urged Negro voters to support her Democratic opponent, former Senator James Hamilton Lewis.

Her statement added that she had been informed the circulars contained a "malicious and unjustifiable attack upon her late husband, Medill McCormick."

"While I regret that the announcement of the mayor's opposition to me was not made more openly and regret that it is based on a malicious and unjustifiable attack on my late husband, I am pleased," said the McCormick statement, "that the mayor's attitude is thus definitely disclosed."

"His action will, I am sure, throw a new light on my own political associations, which have been generally misrepresented in the hostile press for the last two years."

The statement continued: "I have repeatedly said publicly that I never had a political alliance with Mayor Thompson." She added that the circulars appealed for votes for all Republican candidates except Mrs. McCormick and cited this as evidence of "Mayor Thompson's animosity" toward her.

NAB SUSPECT IN MISSOURI KIDNAP CASE

Salesman to Be Viewed by Mrs. McKinley for Possible Identification

Greenfield, Mo. (P)—Bill Prater, 41, southwest Missouri motor car salesman, was to be returned here today from Carthage to be viewed by Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, helpless and expectant mother, who was kidnapped from her parents' home here recently.

A warrant charging Prater and Mrs. Emory Hill of Carthage, recently divorced wife of a St. Louis City, Mo., banker, with the kidnapping, obtained by W. S. Peltz, Dade-co prosecuting attorney, remained unserved early today and authorities continued to hold the couple on an open charge of "investigation." They said the warrant likely would be served sometime today. Prater's home is near here.

Sheriff O. S. Killingsworth, who with two deputies arrested Prater and Mrs. Hill in a Carthage grocery store yesterday afternoon, said he had been trailing him for several days, but refused to reveal the source of his information which led to the arrest. Sheriff Killingsworth said he planned to leave Mrs. Hill in the Jasper-co jail at Carthage when Prater is taken to Greenfield.

Prater denied any part in the abduction of Mrs. McKinley, whose father, Benton Wilson, became wealthy by oil operations in Oklahoma. He said he wanted to be viewed immediately by the heiress.

The kidnaper entered the Wilson home the night of Oct. 13 when Mrs. McKinley and her mother were alone and forced the girl to drive away with him in her motor car. She was released the next night after promising to pay the abductor part of the $50,000 he at first demanded.

The kidnapping stirred all south-west Missouri. Posses, using bloodhounds, searched the wooded hills and valleys for several days, finding only where the girl had spent the night in the woods with the kidnaper.

Authorities planned to take every precaution to prevent possible mob violence when Prater is brought here.

MAKE RAPID PROGRESS ON ZUELKE BUILDING

Although handicapped by cold weather, construction work has been progressing at a rapid rate on the new Irving Zuelke building at the intersection of College-ave and Oneida-st.

Workmen, finished pouring concrete on the sixth and last floor Wednesday afternoon. Thursday they expected to finish pouring concrete work on the structure.

Brick masons have advanced to the fourth floor with the Bedford stone work. They expect to reach the last floor within the next two or three weeks. Work also has been started on the first floor windows and front.

A part of the sidewalk around the building on the north side of the building was opened Wednesday. The walk has been covered with a canopy to protect pedestrians. The canopy was formerly located in the road off the curb on College-ave.

DRIVER FINED FOR PASSING RED LIGHT

W. J. Reberg, New London, was fined $1 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Thursday morning when he pleaded guilty of failing to stop for the traffic lights at the corner of College-ave and Appleton-st. He was arrested Wednesday by Officer Carl Radtke.

JUDGE DISMISSES GIRL'S SUIT FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

Holds Plaintiff Did Not Have Sufficient Grounds for Action

Miss Margaret Jean Burke's suit for $10,000 damages against Harold C. E. Pierce, Menasha, was dismissed by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Thursday afternoon for lack of evidence. The case opened Monday morning and a jury had listened to testimony until the attorneys for the Pierces moved for a directed verdict and the judge granted the motion.

Miss Burke, South Bend, Ind., and Pierce are former Lawrence college students. She sought damages for the loss of several teeth and alleged permanent scars on her face which resulted from an automobile accident. She was riding with Pierce on S. Memorial-dr in February, 1929, when their car crashed into the rear of a taxicab of the Smith Livery and Transfer company. Miss Burke charged Pierce's careless and negligent driving caused the crash.

The Pierces caused the Smith company to be made a co-defendant in the case and Pierce also filed suit against Smith for $5,000. Smith counterclaimed against Pierce for $200.

Yesterday Judge Berg dismissed Pierce's suit against Smith and then, by stipulation of the attorneys, Smith's suit against Pierce also was dismissed.

There were four other Lawrence college students riding in Pierce's car when the accident occurred but none of them were injured.

LAWRENCE READY TO GREET ALUMNI AT HOMECOMING

Viking-Carroll Football Game Saturday Afternoon Is Feature

Lawrence college will celebrate its annual Homecoming this week-end with a two-day program of dances, pep-sessions, parades, and fraternity house and dormitory get-togethers, with the Lawrence-Carroll football game and an All-College day at the new Alexander gymnasium as a climax. The celebration will begin with a Frolic at the old gym at 7 o'clock Friday evening. At 8:30 the students will go in a body to Memorial chapel for a giant pep-session. Several prominent alumni and former football players will speak, members of the team will appear on the platform, the new Pep Band will play, and the three cheer leaders will lead a group of mass cheers. After the pep-session the annual Homecoming-evening torchlight procession up and down College-ave will take place. The bonfire, a tradition of Lawrence Homecomings, has been dispensed with because of the increased fire hazard to campus buildings.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock the parade will leave Memorial chapel and proceed west on College-ave to State-st and return. About 30 floats are expected in the parade this year, according to Edgar Koch, parade chairman. Mayor John Goodland Jr., F. T. Cloak of the college faculty, and Virginia Ross Johnson will act as float judges. The retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce has offered cash prizes of $15, $10, and $5 for the three best floats.

The Lawrence-Carroll football game will start at 2:15 in the afternoon at Whiting field. Between halves the new Pep Band will appear for the first time in their new uniforms. The band will play Lawrence and Carroll songs and form the letters "L" and "C". The annual Homecoming dance will be held in the new Alexander gymnasium in the evening. The awards for fraternity house and dormitory decorations and floats will be announced and presented during the intermission. Earl Youngbeck and his eight piece orchestra, a Dexter band from Madison, will play.

Escanaba, Mich. (P)—The second annual upper peninsula potato, hay and grain show was under way today. It will continue until Friday.

JOBLESS MEN ARE AVAILABLE NOW TO HELP AROUND HOUSE

These are the days when Dad goes home from the office early or Johnny gives up his after-school football game back of the garage; at Jimmy's house, winter is winter, and storm windows are storm windows—and storm windows parked behind the lawn mower in the woodshed, don't have the same effect there as they do forming a barricade for the cold winds of the Jack Frost season.

Mayor John Goodland Jr. suggested Wednesday morning that if Dad and Johnny kick up too strong a fuss over putting on the storm windows, raking up the back yard, cleaning out the basement and garage, banklugging the flower garden, pounding the rugs, washing the windows, or any of the dozen other fall tasks, there are plenty of jobless men in the city who would welcome the opportunity to do the work.

The mayor urges Appleton persons who are having odd jobs done to distribute them to the persons who need work, and even suggests that where it can be afforded the jobs be given to the jobless rather than have a member of the family do it. A campaign similar to this is being waged in Racine, where home owners are providing just as much work as possible to the needy.

50 FARMERS ATTEND TWO COUNTY MEETINGS

The other meeting was held at the village of Bear Creek Wednesday night with 31 farmers present. On Monday Dr. Larsen addressed two meetings and Thursday afternoon he talked at a meeting at Dale. Thursday evening he will be at Greenville Grange hall. The meetings were arranged by Gus Sell, county agent.

Supreme Court Case May Affect Juryless Trials

Washington (P)—An automobile ride taken by William H. Calk along "O" street, Southeast, in the capital on a July day in 1929, has brought a case to the supreme court which may affect the proposal that petty liquor offenders be tried without a jury.

After the law enforcement commission recommended that United States commissioners be given authority to try liquor cases, the plan was fought on the ground it was constitutional, while it was conceded that in some minor offense a jury trial was not necessary.

The decision of the court in the Calk case may clarify to some extent the entire question although it has no connection with liquor. Calk was convicted in police court of reckless driving and sentenced to 30 days in jail. He did not deny the charges but demanded a jury trial. This being denied him, he appealed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, which reversed the lower court.

The government, appealing to the supreme court, sought a determination of what class of offenses could constitutionally be tried without juries. Its brief said the case might prove of great importance throughout the country "if congress seeks more expeditious enforcement of the laws against minor offenses."

Both government counsel and the attorneys for Calk presented formidable precedents and decisions of lower courts.

The law enforcement commission's recommendation for juryless trials as a means for relieving court congestion was embodied in a bill which passed the house at the last session but never was acted upon by the senate. On it depended companion bills to define misdemeanors under the Jones "5 and 10" law, to authorize the waiver of the right of trial by jury and to define petty offenses under the United States code. All failed of final action.

Should the supreme court hand down a decision broad enough in the Calk case, it might involve either abandonment of the enforcement commission's suggestion, or a new drive for enactment of the side tracked legislation.

ASTHMA DISAPPEARS

Recovery Due to Discovery of Basic Cause of Disease

Indianapolis—Mrs. Lucy Harvey of Springfield, Ill., has written a letter of intense interest to all who suffer from Bronchial Asthma. In it she tells how the discovery of the basic cause of Asthma and Hay Fever by the celebrated Dr. Fugate resulted in the complete disappearance of her Asthma. Mrs. Harvey began using Dr. Fugate's Remedy in March, 1927. Almost a year later she wrote:

"I am still feeling fine. I had Asthma for 25 years and had used all kinds of medicine and doctored with doctors, but nothing helped me as much as your medicine. All winter I felt fine. I sleep all night, and go out in the cold any time I want to, and it doesn't hurt me. I do all my own work. I get up in the morning singing, where I used to get up coughing. Dr. Fugate's Remedy is the best Asthma medicine I ever got hold of. It is worth its weight in gold."

"MRS. LUCY HARVEY." Copies of similar letters from others who formerly suffered from Bronchial Asthma, together with an important booklet on Dr. Fugate's discovery of the cause of Asthma and Hay Fever, will be sent free by The Fugate Co., Dept. 6764, 126 S. Prepare To Build Up Fleet To Terms Of Arms Treaty

PROGRAM IS OUTLINED BY NAVAL BOARD

Hoover Studies Proposal to Make Recommendations to Congress

Washington—(AP)—A new building program to bring the United States fleet up toward the limits of the London treaty has been drawn by the Navy General Board.

It is to be studied by President Hoover as a basis for recommendations to congress, which at the next session is to take up the question of naval appropriations. The exact contents of the board's program have not been made public, leaving undetermined just how far its members have gone in adopting the economy ideas of the administration. The rate at which new building and replacement would be undertaken under the plan remained undisclosed.

There have been authoritative indications, however, that the board favored building up to the full limit of 355,000 tons for aircraft carriers. Including one ship just contracted for, the present tonnage is 79,900, in three ships. Several vessels of comparative small tonnage are to be built.

Modernization of the battleship New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho, which have not yet been equipped with the latest armament, gun controls and defensive armor, is provided for. Other battleships also would be rejuvenated during the next several years.

Submarine construction recommended is understood to involve replacement of some 25,000 tons of obsolescent S and R type boats with vessels displacing between 1,000 and 1,300 tons.

WORK ON DESTROYERS
Destroyer construction is believed to form an important part of the recommendations for immediate outlays. This country ceased building destroyers in 1920, after accumulating a tremendous number during the war. Many already are worn out and practically all are reaching their retirement age together.

Crucial in the new construction not already authorized will be in the six-inch gun class. This category was the center of extensive opposition to the treaty among high naval officers but the type is favored by the new chief of operations, Admiral William V. Pratt.

The United States has ten such cruisers afloat, all fairly new. They could build under the treaty another 13, 500 tons within the category—but the administration has been numerous indications that all might not be constructed.

Only four of the 18 ten-thousand ton, eight-gun gun cruisers allotted the United States under the treaty, remain to be undertaken. The construction of all has been authorized, the last to be started in 1935.

Estimates of the cost of bringing the fleet up to treaty limits in every category have run as high as $1,000,000,000 but the administration has indicated it believes considerably smaller outlay sufficient.

GIRL WAS NOT SOLE REASON WHY BUCKETS HELPED DEFEAT PENN

Milwaukee—(AP)—It was a very pretty little story while it lasted. But Morris Werba said today it was a bit overdone to report that "Buckets" Goldenberg, University of Wisconsin football star, played nobly in the Wisconsin-Pennsylvania game solely for the heart and hand of his daughter, Marlon Werba.

"Buckets" who is a "friend of the family" probably had some thought of pleasing Marlon, but pride in his service to his alma mater probably was uppermost.

Mr. Werba believes. He denied the report that he had said his parental consent to their engagement depended on "Buckets" setting in there and winning.

Mr. Werba said he mentioned that he was placing a small wager on Wisconsin and said jokingly he would not have Goldenberg for a son-in-law if he didn't help win the game.

SPEAKERS STRIKE AT UNEMPLOYMENT AT EAGLES RALLY

Milwaukee Organizer Says Prevention Is Now Most Necessary Item

The alleged economic depression and unemployment situation and possible methods for relief, was discussed by Harry R. McLogan, Milwaukee, state organizer, at a mass meeting of the Appleton State Aerie at the local hall, Wednesday evening. Approximately 200 people attended the meeting.

Arthur Daelke, president of the local organization, introduced the state president, Edwin J. Dove, Beaver Dam, who took charge of the session. Dr. William T. Doyle, state vice president, Fond du Lac, was the first speaker on the program. He spoke on "The God of the Order."

Mr. McLogan, in his address pointed out that it was not in the power of the state aerie of Eagles to even attempt to overcome the present depression, but it was the aim to prevent a recurrence of the present situation.

He also told about the organization of a commission appointed by the state president, consisting of Conrad H. Mann, Kansas City, Mo., Frank E. Herrings, South Bend, Ind., and Otto P. Luse of Indianapolis, Ind.

He pointed out that the commission is forming a resolution in the form of a bill to be presented at the coming session of Congress, urging the appointment of a federal industrial commission.

He also outlined in detail various methods by which the government could prevent recurrence of the present situation. These various plans will be embodied in the resolution to be presented to congress, he stated.

It was through the efforts of the Eagles that such national laws as the "widow's pension," "workingman's compensation law," "child labor law" and "old age pension act" are now on almost every statute books in every state in the union.

John Casper of Waupun, state inside guard spoke on "Fraternalism," and Chris Shode, state secretary of Manitowish, spoke on "Membership" referring that if we wish to succeed in our efforts to solve this unemployment situation that we must have man power.

Al Lautenbach, Plymouth, state treasurer, Murt Malone, Oshkosh, past state president; Mayor John Goodland, Jr., and Judge Fred Heinemann, and James Gates, were the other speakers on the program.

Members of the state Eagles aerie were present from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Sheboygan, Manitowish, and other neighboring cities in the Fox river valley. A social hour followed the business meeting.

Tired Of Being Rich Man's Son, Arrested Youth Says

Evanson, Ill.—A youth who said he is Roscoe H. Finch, Jr., 17, of 776 Lincoln-ave., St. Paul, Minn., who tired of the social life of a rich man's son and left home two months ago, was arrested last night and confessed passing several bad checks.

His father, the prisoner said, is Roscoe H. Finch, president of the Finch Van Slyke and McConeville Co., St. Paul department store. The boy began his trip with $200 borrowed from his father's friends at the University club in St. Paul and $400 from an uncle, he said.

He admitted passing five bad checks here, all on the First National bank of St. Paul, and is being held for further investigation.

The prisoner said he left St. Paul in a stolen car with Miss Charlotte Vinick, 18, of St. Paul. He worked for several weeks as a lumberjack and tired of that, he said, then left the girl in St. Paul and went on to Toledo, Ohio, taking a book of blank checks. He said he passed several checks in Toledo, using an uncle there as a reference, then went to Milwaukee, Wis., where he repeated the performance, using another uncle, and two weeks ago came to Evanson.

Here he stayed at the Evanson hotel, where he passed three checks, he said, then moved to the Georgian hotel, where the manager, after cashing two of the checks, became suspicious and called police.

A watch was set on the boy for two days, police said, and he was arrested last night. He talked readily, saying:

"I just got tired of the social life and wanted a change."

In his room, detectives found a letter to Miss Vinick, hinting that he knew he was being watched by police and that he was going to leave. It asked her to meet him in Duluth, Minn.

MISSIONARY TO PREACH HERE ON SUNDAY MORNING

Dr. Alfred F. Goodsell Will Appear at Congregational Church

Dr. Fred Field Goodsell, executive vice president of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, who last spring assumed his new post in Boston after 23 years as a missionary in the Near East, will preach at the Congregational church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Dr. Goodsell will visit Appleton after attending the national convention of the Congregational Board of Foreign Missions at Madison, which will be held at the Congregational church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Dr. Goodsell also will lead a forum discussion at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Congregations from 10 other Congregational churches from Green Bay and Clintonville to Menasha have been invited to the meeting.

"People generally in America, including unfortunately a great majority of those who are personally deeply interested in what the church stands for in the community, simply do not realize how far ahead of ordinary ideas about missions the actual principles and practice of foreign missions have gone," says Dr. Goodsell.

"The commercial, philanthropic and religious activities of America throughout the Near East have created a vast capital of good will in almost every nation from Egypt to Bulgaria and from Greece to Persia," he adds.

"Many erroneous ideas of what the missionary is trying to do and how he is trying to do it. There is overwhelming evidence to support my convictions that in nine cases out of 10, Americans of ordinary common sense would heartily commend the spirit and methods of progressive missionaries around the world today if they knew a few of them personally and had a chance to understand what they are doing."

Dr. Goodsell compares the progress of foreign mission methods to the development of transportation methods.

Dr. Goodsell, a University of California graduate, took his B. D. from Hartford Theological seminary and did special work at the Universities of Marburg and Berlin in Germany. In 1926 the Pacific School of Religion conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity, and he was recently elected a Fellow of the American Geographical Society.

During his many years of service as field secretary, he was highly esteemed by Turkish government officials as a missionary educator. When the Great War was on, he worked among the Turkish prisoners in Russia.

At present he is acting as liaison officer between the American Board and other Congregational bodies, as well as an interpreter to the public of what the Christian missionary work of the Board really is.

FACULTY TO ABOLISH SCHOOL SPIRIT CUP

The Appleton high school faculty has decided to abolish the awarding of the school spirit cup. The result of the vote was 32 to 1.

Each faculty member was presented with a ballot containing reasons for the continuation or discontinuation of the present, symbolic trophy.

The members of the spirit cup committee were the Misses Ruth Sackler, chairman, Ruth Becker, Pearl Lindall, Ruth Mielke and Marjorie Stevenson and Leland DeLong.

Reasons in favor of the award were: arousing and maintenance of enthusiasm for general activities; sponsoring of greater pride in class feeling.

Reasons for discontinuation were: Too difficult to measure school spirit, classes are not on the same basis on general, symbolisms are at a disadvantage, a loss of class unity has come with the increase in size of classes, the cup is a materialistic award for something which is intangible, it has become an end in itself and the custom has been outgrown and lost its significance.

HIGH WAGES AND SHORT HOURS ARE ADVISED BY FRANK

This Policy Alone Will Keep U. S. Industrial System Going, He Says

Chicago—(AP)—The only things that can keep the industrial system of the United States a going concern are high wages, short hours, and low prices, Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, said in an address here last night. He was speaking at the seventh conference of major industries conducted by the University of Chicago.

Dr. Frank characterized the present economic crisis as the "most serious in the history of the United States" because it is the first general depression that has come since machine economy has achieved maturity.

"The entire economic system of the West has reached an impasse which only the most clear-headed, creative, and courageous, education, industrial, and political leadership can extricate it," he said.

He based his statement on "four obvious but all-too-generally overlooked aspects of this depression," namely:

"It is not simply an American depression; it is world-wide.

"It is not simply a financial depression; it is industrial as well.

"It is not marked by an overproduction of manufactured goods alone; it is marked by an overproduction of raw materials as well.

"The essence of this depression is simply that the leadership that has developed our policies for using goods and distributing wealth has proved inferior to the leadership that has developed our processes for making goods and producing wealth."

Dr. Frank pointed out that far-sighted American business leaders established the credo of high wages, short hours, and low prices after the war. The depression resulted because it was neither followed generally nor applied far he asserted.

"The simple fact is that a machine economy must, along with the making of commodities, see to it that the consuming millions have money with which to buy and leisure in which to enjoy the products the machine order creates," Dr. Frank stated. "That means higher wages than we have yet paid, shorter hours than we have yet set, and lower prices than we have yet made."

The machine economy can hit the standards of living, emancipate the race from drudgery, and give mankind leisure if the leadership of industry sees to it that a large share of the national income is shifted into the pockets of the consuming millions; and the margin of leisure for the millions is markedly increased," Dr. Frank held.

These measures were to declare worthless shares in the bank, the original capital of which was 10,000,000, or $10,000,000. This recently had been reduced to half, however.

Deposits totalling 70,000,000, or $70,000,000. Small investors and farmers of Minho province are the hardest hit by failure of the institution. Appointment of a receiver announced after closing hours yesterday dropped like a bomb into the business life of the community. Nobody, not even directors of the bank, were aware of the government's dramatic intervention in the institution's affairs.

The bourse opened quietly, and stocks of the Banco do Minho were not quoted.

High Wages, Low Prices Are Urged As Business Remedy

Chicago—(AP)—The "sea of surplus" responsible for the present business depression may be rolled back by high wages, short hours, and low prices, President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin said in a banquet address last night before the conference of major industrial leaders, which was sponsored by the American Institute of Meat Packers. Forty persons attended.

"It is one of the ironies of history," Frank said, "that the things for which labor and liberalism have pleaded through the generations—high wages, short hours, and low prices are now seen to be the only things that can keep our industrial system a going concern."

"The United States is, at the moment, in the midst of the most serious economic crisis of its history. It is the first general crisis that has befallen us since our machine economy has come to measurable maturity."

"Our machine economy is today sinking us in a sea of surplus production that we have not yet provided statesmanship enough to use to the advantage of ourselves and of the world. With production and consumption out of balance, there are two obvious ways to deal with economic depression. We can slow down production or we can speed up consumption."

"To throw the brakes on our productive capacity, is, in my opinion, a coward's policy and a social retreat. We have evolved a machine economy that can, if we will, but bring forth statesmanship to its direction emancipate the race from drudgery. But machine economy will never do these things until the leadership of industry sees to it that a larger share of the national income is shifted into the pockets of the consuming millions and until the leisure for the millions is markedly increased."

There are little children. The help must come for these families promptly and adequately so that no child shall suffer from malnutrition and no child shall be taken away from its parents because of the present industrial emergency.

"Nor should we wait until the family has gone over the precipice of destitution before the aid is given."

"This must be a matter of local aid, but the federal government can lend its support to efforts that the local communities are making through both public and private agencies to provide this aid."

Discussing the part of war department would play in the general scheme for relief, Secretary Hurley said today he was seeking the cooperation of contractors along the Mississippi river and its tributaries to furnish more general employment in central localities.

WORK ON SYSTEM

The secretary said Major General Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers and Col. George R. Spaulding, army division engineer with headquarters at St. Louis, were working on a "stagger system" plan of employment for use along the river. Under this system contractors, instead of employing one man for six days a week would employ two men three days each.

The engineers, he said, had been instructed to inquire into all possible projects which could be pushed ahead at the present to bring unemployment relief in various localities.

ONE CANNOT TELL WHAT WILL HAPPEN DURING CAMPAIGNS

New York May Name Republican Governor—Ohio May Vote for Democrats

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—Strange things have been happening in the election campaign, giving rise to such ordinary freakish thoughts that a Republican governor can be elected in New York and that Democratic senators can be elected in Ohio and Illinois—with possibly a Democratic governor in Pennsylvania.

Perhaps none of these things will come to pass, but it takes such possibilities to pep up a campaign.

Widespread interest in the New York gubernatorial contest is due both to the part prohibition has been playing in politics up there and to the fact that if the Republicans happen to win, the Democrats of the country will have to start looking for a 1932 presidential candidate with a grand free-for-all in prospect.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is standing for reelection, opposed by U. S. District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle of New York City. Tuttle is a strong candidate anyway, and the recent disclosures of graft among Tammany leaders in New York have provided him with a neat issue because Tammany is such an important part of the New York Democratic.

He has come out for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, riding himself of the dismal drawback of being a dry or straddling candidate in a distinctly wet state. The big threat to Tuttle, one very likely to defeat him, is the plan of the dries to run an independent candidate who will cut into the upstate G. O. P. vote.

THE TAMMANY HANDICAP

Roosevelt, now regarded as a probable presidential nominee in 1932, finds himself faced with the fact that Tammany votes are a requisite for victory but that Tammany politics is his main handicap. He must take a firm stand against Tammany corruption but still can't afford to get Tammany unduly incensed at him. As long as Tuttle is wet he can't depend on many wet Republican votes as he and Al Smith have in the past. He is fortunate, however, in the fact that voters seldom get excited about corruption and the odds seem to remain somewhat in his favor.

Everyone who has been out in the large cities of Ohio reports a feeling that Robert J. Bulkley, wet Democrat, will defeat Senator Eugene McCulloch, the dry Republican. Republicans in those cities are often more wet than Republican. Bulkley has been winning the straw votes. McCulloch apparently will have to depend on large majorities from the smaller communities, strongholds of the Anti-Saloon League. Despite the confidence of Democrats and wets in a Bulkley victory, however, it is well to remember the hard cold facts that Hoover carried the state over Smith in 1923 by a majority of more than 750,000 and that Senator Fess defeated his Democratic opponent that year by about 500,000.

ILLINOIS IS PUZZLE

Illinois went for Hoover by 450,000 and gave Senator Glenn a majority of about 275,000. The Illinois fight looks like a horse race, but Democrats here are even more confident of electing J. Hann Lewis over Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick than of electing Bulkley in Ohio. Mrs. McCormick's worst worry concerns the number of dry Republican votes the Anti-Saloon League can pull to its independent candidate, Mrs. Lotie O'Neill. Her next greatest concern is the question how many voters oppose the idea of having a woman senator and how many are opposed to Mrs. McCormick in particular.

In Washington, Mrs. McCormick has lost much sympathy because she employed detectives to shadow Chairman Nye of the Senate primary investigating committee and then boldly defied Nye to do something about it. Illinois voters, how-

AWARD CERTIFICATES FOR FIRST AID WORK

Madison—(AP)—Certificates for proficiency in first aid, shown at the short course in firemanship at the University of Wisconsin several weeks ago, were given to 20 men in various parts of the state, Dean C. D. Snell of the extension division announced today.

S. Department of Agriculture, the American Red Cross and the Madison and Milwaukee fire departments. The following earned certificates: C. J. Boothroy, Beaver Dam; John Cilibik, Chester E. Miller, Chenequa; W. G. Snyder, Fond du Lac; Russell Kearns, La Crosse; Henry Vanderheiden, Lena; Edward Landi, Alton; E. Lemon, Stanley Oldham, Madison; Alfred J. ALPINE CHASMS TAKE HEAVY DEATH TOLLS

Chamonix, France—(AP)—The insatiable Alps has claimed more victims this season, than in any recent years.

Up to September, twenty-six mountain climbers met death either by falling into crevices or by freezing to death.

Lucien Tignol, founder of the local Alpine Club, says that one reason for these tragedies is the high cost of guides. For Mount Blanc, the price, with food, guide and carrier is $30. The trip takes two days. Without a guide, the cost is less than $5. Hence amateurs dispend with the expense and go alone.

He also attributes so many failures to the sporting desire to climb somewhere that no one else has been. There are too many young men who come here in a foolhardy spirit. As long as the weather stays fine, so do the young men. But when the winds come and blind them with snow, they are lost.

The municipal power plant of Eugene, Ore., has built up a surplus of more than $2,000,000.

ever, may regard her as just a spunky little gal from home who isn't letting a bunch of senatorial smart-alecks put anything over on her.

Pennsylvania gave Hoover 2,000,000 votes to Smith's 1,000,000 and in 1926 gave John S. Fisher 1,100,000 votes to his Democratic opponent's 365,000. In the face of such majorities and the state's well known pocketed Republicanism it is almost impossible to imagine that Mr. Hemphill, the Democratic candidate, will be defeating Gifford Pinchot for the governorship. Nevertheless, the strong Republican Vane machine is said to be combining with the wets against Pinchot and there will be no such G. O. P. majorities this year in the gubernatorial fight.

Boss Vane's hatred of Pinchot is deep and bitter, dating back beyond the time Pinchot helped hinder him from taking the Senate seat which the Senate never let him have.

A Nebraska farmer killed 103 rats in 12 hours with K-R-O (Kills Rats Only), the product made by a special process of squill, an ingredient highly recommended by the U. S. Government. It is sure death to rats and mice but harmless to dogs, cats, poultry or even baby chicks. K-R-O is today America's most widely used rat and mouse exterminator. STICKLERS

A FARMER, wanting to have these pieces of chain welded into a single length, was told by the blacksmith that it would cost him one cent for every time that a link was cut and one cent for every time that a link was welded together.

"Then it will cost me exactly six cents," said the farmer.

"No, eight cents," replied the blacksmith.

VOCATIONAL HEADS VIEW UNEMPLOYMENT

Problem to Be Studied Thoroughly at Meeting in Milwaukee

Madison—(AP)—Emphasis on the value of vocational schools as a factor in solving the unemployment problem will be made at the American Vocational association meeting in Milwaukee, Dec. 10-12. George F. Hambrecht, state director of vocational education, announced here today.

"I have no question that in approaching the problem of the unemployed, the facilities of the part-time school are far from being a negligible factor," Mr. Hambrecht said. "The part-time school can be of great assistance in helping to stabilize employment. The day is past when steady employment can be assured without adequate preparation. The decreased demand for unskilled manual labor is a permanent feature of modern life. The increased demand for a high degree of skill and training is likewise permanent."

The state committee on arrangements for the welcoming and entertainment of the association, which consists of more than one hundred representative citizens, met here last week. Among those who attended were Frank Bruce of Milwaukee, Miss Abbie L. Mariatt and Dr. A. H. Edgerton of the University of Wisconsin, F. M. Karmes of the Oshkosh State Teachers college, B. E. McCormick, secretary of the Wisconsin Teachers association, E. G. Doudna, secretary of the state board

PLANE, BUS HOOKUP CUTS TRAVEL TIME

Kansas City, Mo.—(AP)—Keeping up with the times in transportation, an airplane-motorbus "hookup" has been inaugurated here that cuts approximately three days from the overland travel time between the Midwest and Pacific coast.

It permits passengers to cover the distance between St. Louis, Mo., and Los Angeles in 21 hours and 15 minutes. The eastward trip is made in 25 hours and 30 minutes. Ordinary bus schedules require approximately four days.

The committee also made arrangements to show visitors the vocational schools of the various cities of Wisconsin. THE REAL ISSUE

Someone once said that what the Democratic party needed most was more Democrats but in order to get them in Wisconsin it will have to have a different sort of leadership. Is Mr. Hammersley, the present candidate for governor, the sort of man to rehabilitate the Democratic party in Wisconsin? Time alone will tell. Hammersley is a man of education, experience and ability. Perhaps, through heavy travail he will lift the party out of the gutter but, considering the mismanagement the Democratic party has had in the past, it would take almost a miracle to bring it in one campaign back to its old fighting position where its leaders were respected, admired and often publicly supported. For nearly thirty years now it has assumed in this state an almost negative position, looking for regular Republican support when the Republican nominee was a progressive and for progressive support when the nominee was a regular, and really getting neither to any marked extent because it did not command public confidence, standing for nothing definite for any length of time.

Will it do Mr. Hammersley any good to compare personal records with Philip LaFollette? Will it do him any good to remind the voters that this is presumably a democracy or are the people simply determined to brush aside all standards of the past and elevate a man to the governorship who is entitled to it for no other reason than Carol is entitled to rule in Roumania? Have we come to the pass where the people are tired of the old talk, where they no longer want to listen about men who have literally pulled themselves up by their own bootstraps? It would appear from the last primary that they do not want self-made men, but want them born that way—that they wish to listen in rapt wonderment of what such a one's father did or his grandfather; that they want to be told that "blood will tell," learn that we have "blue blood" hereabouts and find themselves expecting something of the mysterious; that they are sick and tired of those who without opportunity worked their way through school, earning their room rent by shoveling coal, their board by waiting on table, striving against heavy odds and succeeding by perseverance and ability; that they want someone used to marble halls, to the splendor of capital cities, to the thunderous plaudits of multitudes; that they want someone born to position and power as in olden days those ruled who were "to the manor born"; that they are tired of log cabins and humble homes and all the other drab regalia of democracy; that they want something bright, shining, sparkling with the iridescence of the diamond; in short, that they want the trappings and trimmings of monarchical forms even if they delude themselves in the meantime with adhering to titles that have grown up during democratic days.

The issue in the contest between Hammersley and LaFollette is a deep and abiding one, striking to the very core of our form of government, portrayed simply in a slogan which Hammersley would do well to adopt, "Which shall rule, democracy or monarchy?"

We hope Mr. Hammersley is made of the sterling and stubborn stuff that can lead a cause for he has a splendid opportunity; that he can take heart even at defeat and lead on again, that he will maintain stubbornly and persistently the democratic principles early fashioned by Thomas Jefferson and to which the inheritance of office was unknown. For above and beyond the internal affairs of Wisconsin, the matter of its taxes, of employment, prohibition, or other discussed issues, Hammersley has a real issue worth fighting for:

THE NORTHWESTERN'S NEW HOME

A large number of Appleton people recently in Oshkosh have been impressed with the splendid new home erected for the Oshkosh Daily Northwestern at Oshkosh. It is no exaggeration to say that it is one of the finest newspaper buildings in the entire United States, from the standpoint of utility and efficiency as well as sheer beauty.

The Northwestern could give no greater expression to its confidence in the future of Oshkosh than by the erection of this building. Large enough to permit of tremendous expansion, it expresses the confidence that Oshkosh will continue to grow and prosper and that the newspaper will grow and prosper with it.

The publisher of the Northwestern deserves well of his community for his enterprise and his public spirit. The erection of this building should be an example and a stimulant to all business enterprises in his city. It has focused new attention on Oshkosh because businessmen everywhere will recognize in this project the earmarks of a live and progressive city. The Post-Crescent is delighted to compliment and to congratulate its neighboring city's newspaper on its splendid achievement.

LIFE FILLED WITH ROMANCE

When a man starts regretting the passing of the good old days, and begins to remark that nothing is quite as fine nowadays as it used to be, it is a fair sign that he is getting old. Nevertheless, even a young man can spot one or two ways in which the modern world has fallen below the level of the world of his grandfather. Life has grown easier and safer, and in most ways this has been all to the good; but there has departed, somehow, something of that sense of glamor that used to surround men and make life a richer and brighter affair than it is today.

Captain John W. Thomason, Jr., that talented officer of United States marines, recently wrote a biography of Jeb Stuart that illustrates the matter perfectly. Jeb Stuart was Lee's chief of cavalry in the Civil war. He was a cavalry officer in the days when the cavalry was the cavalry, when a general took his chances along with the buck privates, and war still had an overtone from the age of chivalry; and merely looking at his portrait, as Captain Thomason gives it, is enough to emphasize the passing of the sense of glamor.

Look at the man's picture—a young man, with a flowing tawny beard, dressed in immaculate Confederate gray, wearing always a gay plume in his hat and gold spurs on his great cavalry boots, with a yellow silk sash about his waist and a gray cape lined with red silk that fluttered in the breeze when he galloped into action at the head of a thundering line of yelling horsemen, sabres aloft. He had the dash and fire of one of the children of romance. He wore a red rose in his lapel, sang rollicking songs when he slouched at ease in the saddle, and he died at last on the battlefield, a world-famous general at the age of 32.

Merely reading about the man quickens one's pulse. But he would be a lost and archaic misfit today. Generals do not gallop into action in this efficient era, nor do they wear plumed hats and red-lined capes. He was a type brought forth by a different generation. We cannot duplicate him. It is all very well to say that plumes and bright spurs are unimportant. It is hard to live by bread alone; and among things which nourish without filling the belly is this elusive, intangible aura of romance which the bright riders of the old days bore with them. Jeb Stuart furnished a masterpiece in the art of living; and, like all works of art, his career can lift the beholder out of himself and persuade him that man has, somewhere within him, a streak of divinity.

That is the sort of thing we have lost. And yet—have we really lost it, or has it only changed its guise? Was there not, a few years ago, a slim Viking who soared across a dark ocean in a silver monoplane, and brought high adventure down from the clouds for us? Perhaps, after all, a mechanical age can evolve its own romance. Let us hope so. We cannot live without it.

IT IS VERY discouraging to get up with the thermometer clinging tenaciously to 22 degrees and then read in a morning paper where India summer is chasing winter out of the central states so discouraging that we almost went back to bed . . . we read where proper turning is essential to good driving, yea, and so is proper stopping and starting . . . and a submarine went down 332 feet to a new record . . . but what of it? . . . sure, it had to come back up again . . .

Well, what we wanna know is what's the stuff they're selling now?

They picked up George ("Bugs") Moran the other day. George is one of those playful lads who used to be at the head of a flock of hoodlums. Now George says he prefers the outdoors to racketeering. Maybe his nickname indicates that he is going out for biology in a big way. Or picking pansies.

If he tries bumping off Al Capone, he may be more interested in lilacs.

"WHEN WINTER COMES," says an advertisement telling about cruises to the West Indies, "TURN UP A TANNED NOSE."

From now on, we're gonna spend about an hour a day sitting in front of the open door to a roaring furnace.

And probably get sunburned.

No matter how cold it gets, there are always a few flies left to help make life miserable.

There is probably less than no news in the fact that Gloria Swanson is getting another divorce.

They've arrested some fellows for selling hooch in the basement of the old Manitowish opera house. Probably somebody started to sing "Sweet Adeline."

BERNHARDT'S BIRTH

On Oct. 23, 1845, Sarah Bernhardt, great French tragic actress, was born at Paris. Her parents were Jewish, but she was educated at a convent.

She made her first appearance on the stage in 1864, but attracted little attention. Three years later, however, she became an overnight favorite by her playing of the part of the queen in Victor Hugo's Ruy Blas. The Franco-Prussian War interrupted her career, and for a while she became a nurse.

In 1879 she had a famous season in London. By this time her reputation as the greatest actress of her day was securely established. She then toured with great success all the principal countries of Europe and North and South America. In January, 1914, the Legion of Honor was conferred upon her. During the World War she played at the front despite the fact she could no longer walk or stand unaided, an accident having led to the amputation of a leg.

"Endowed with a matchless voice," as one critic wrote, she had a "remarkable gift of artistic poise and movement." She was also a painter and sculptor and wrote two plays in addition to a volume of memoirs.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

I COME DOWN WITH NERVOUS INDIGESTION

Many a time and oft, yea, too many, have I not asserted that there is no such thing as that which you know you have? Here only the other day I hailed off and compared acute indigestion with Conan Doyle's ecstasies, and in the enthusiasm of the moment I even repeated that there is no such malady as acute chronic nervous, intestinal indigestion or what have you. My intention is this to arouse a little healthful curiosity in the minds of those complacent souls who drift along from worse to ill believing they suffer from nervous nerves, too many nerves, sensitive nerves, highstrung nerves or whatever conceit unstable persons affect in the neurotic line. Except for the first fury of chagrin of the nervous at confrontation with the fact that this term "nervousness" is an evasive way of saying selfishness and the "nervous" individual is one who seeks to evade all the ordinary responsibilities of life or to escape all penalties for errors and misdemeanors, the general effect of a frank consideration of the trouble is to make the individual wonder what really ails him or what is wrong with his scheme of life.

Perhaps half the cases, by the time they come under the attention and care of the doctor, if ever, are based on actual ailments of the body. The other half are just an unfortunate combination of bad heredity, bad environment, bad education and bad medicine.

But, cheer up, nervous wrecks, for Dr. Alvarez, whose sound and wholesome wisdom I have quoted here repeatedly, has written a book about "Nervous Indigestion," published by Paul B. Hoeber, Inc., New York, in which you can learn just what I've been telling you, only Dr. Alvarez does it painlessly and with gloves. A finer book for the layman has not been written by any healer in our generation. The main drawback about the book is that it comes with uncut pages; I was so mad about this that I almost sent my copy back to the publisher with request for a finished copy—but I remembered in time that mine was a gift. I suppose one can't complain about the uncut pages of a gift book.

The first of the seven chapters in Dr. Alvarez's book describes "Ways in which Emotion Can Affect the Digestive Tract." In this chapter the author mentions the case of the young woman who received a menacing letter from the income tax collector. It frightened her, and instead of going to see what was biting the government's penny grabber the poor girl took to her bed and vomited day and night for a week. She stopped only when the doctor, learning what had happened, called and paid the collector the $2.35 additional contribution demanded by the government. Dr. Alvarez remarks that this case shows that not all good medicine need come out of a bottle. I should say it also shows perfectly how people get "nervous."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. A Sad Spectacle Is a Backward Doctor.

I have been trying to find a doctor or throat specialist who removes tonsils with diathermy. So far no luck. My husband has a number of friends in the profession, and they all assure him the electrical method of burning them out was tried long ago and found unsatisfactory and that the present interest is just Dr. Brady's propaganda. They say it only burns off the surface and leaves pus buried in the tonsils . . . (Mrs. T. J. A.)

Answer—Your husband's friends are sadly misguided. For his own health's sake he should make a note of their advice now, and gently remind them of it say five years hence. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and I will give you the name and address of a competent and skilled diathermy extirpator. This is not electric burning, and is no more likely to leave pus or portions of tonsil than is the best surgical tonsillectomy. It is much less likely to kill the patient, however. Singers, persons subject to excessive bleeding, persons with obstinate arthritis, bad heart, chronic bronchitis, or other respiratory complication, those having diabetes, chronic nephritis, are at last safe in selecting diathermy extirpation, if their tonsils should require removal. I can't sing and I have no other particular handicap, but if my tonsils ever should give me trouble I'll have diathermy extirpation, if you please. As for the completeness of removal, the records prove that ordinary surgical tonsillectomy falls short of that in most cases. In 139 out of 1,000 tonsils examined after removal by ordinary surgical methods in a midwest public dispensary the pathologist found large pieces of throat muscle attached! Ouch. But then, I suppose the patients really had no business thrusting their throat muscles into the snare when the surgeon was getting set to haul away.

Health Examination Versus Medical Examination. What distinction do you make between a "health examination" and a "medical examination"? And please explain what a "periodic physical examination" means. (P. G. L.)

Answer—Fair enough. Before the war doctors meant a routine examination of the chest, abdomen and when circumstances indicated it, the pelvic organs and the limbs; such an examination as life insurance companies require. Since the war the periodic examination of healthy persons by the doctor has been promoted as a means of keeping people well; the idea being to detect incipient diseases in their very incipency and take such steps as may be necessary to postpone or possibly cure them. Practically, this does not work out so well as it does in theory. So I conclude one is wise to go to one's doctor for such medical examinations as he deems necessary only when one complains of something. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE fisherfolks were pleased to see the Tynmites thrilled as they could be, just watching great big fish nets being fixed up in good shape. The man explained, "We must tie knots to fix these holes. Just lots and lots." Then Clowdy smiled and said, "Why don't you use adhesive tape?"

The man replied, "Oh, my, oh, my, that's something we will never try. You see, 'twould only wash right off when in the deep, blue sea. 'Course, if you use it on your hand, you'll find that sort of tape works grand. But on a monstrous fishing net, of no use can it be."

Soon Scouty asked, "What will you do with that big net when you are through? Will it be dropped into the sea to catch a mess of fish?" The man responded, "Yes, my son! That very thing will soon be done. We're going to fish right near here. You can watch us, if you wish."

And so the Tynmites stared around. In 'bout an hour or so they found that fish were plentiful not very far from shore. "Once more we'll let our fish net drop," cried out the man. "And then we'll stop. When we have all we need, of course we don't want any more."

The bunch then thanked them for the fun and Copy said, "Now we must run back into town. There are a lot of other things to see. They walked and waved goodbye until they reached a pretty little hill. The Travel Man said, "Up we go! You Tynmites follow me."

Atop the hill a bench was found. 'Twas made of stones and wound around in funny little curves that made it quite a pretty sight. "Now look, you'll see, by gazing down, a panorama of the town. It is a wonderful view by day, but prettier at night."

(The Tynmites meet a cute little playmate in the next story.) (Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.)

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—It is always interesting to stroll down that section of the capital known as "Foggy Bottom" about a half-mile southwest of the White House—and roam through the corridors of the navy department.

Tourists find it a delightful place. Those who love the sea and ships have come to regard this place as a mecca.

For, in those almost endless corridors, there are many models of ships in glass cases, and numerous paintings on the walls depicting great moments in the naval history of this country.

It cost Uncle Sam a lot of money to assemble this miniature fleet. And these models are fine bits of craftsmanship—perfect in every detail.

It is not an uncommon sight to see old sea dogs—some now in the navy, others long retired—standing before one of these glass cases in a reminiscent mood.

For in many instances these models are visual reminders of those old ships on which they first put to sea—ships that made American history.

There is one, for example—the Oregon—before which one of these old-timers may be frequently seen. He is that hale and hearty chap, Capt. C. S. Kempff, formerly naval aviator, but back in the days of '98 a junior officer aboard the Oregon.

It was the Oregon which made the gallant and spectacular 17,000-mile dash from San Francisco to the naval front at Santiago and fired the first shot at the Spanish fleet which was attempting to escape to sea.

Captain Kempff commanded the after guns on the Oregon at that time. And the late Admiral Eberle, who died shortly after his retirement as chief of naval operations, commanded the forward turret.

And well does the captain remember the day when that doughty old battle ship opened the battle with her 13-inch guns.

NEVER GROWS OLD. He admits that he has heard and read this 30-year old story of the Oregon many times, but that it will never grow stale. Nor does he ever fail to get a kick when he passes the model in the corridor of the navy department.

Captain Kempff is back at sea now, aboard the U. S. S. Trenton with the Atlantic fleet.

Incidentally, the navy building itself—a semi-permanent steel and concrete structure—was put up in exactly three months' time during the war.

Navy folks laughed up their sleeve when this lowly, long building is designated as "semi-permanent." It was supposed to last 20 years when put up more than a decade ago, but it begins to look as if the "semi-permanent" means a long, long time.

Motor cars of the future, predicts an engineer, will be equipped with wings. As though they don't fly fast enough as they are.

The Iowa man who bequeathed a library with the stipulation that females be barred, probably acted on the assumption that every woman knows her books, anyway.

In Augusta, Kan., we read, folks are attending a clinic for the removal of warts. Do you suppose the local Warts and Ward Society is back of this?

A more appropriate name for those black shirt patriots in Berlin, to some people's way of thinking, would be Farce-ists.

Henry Ford is to establish his first factory in France. But this is not exactly Mr. Hearst's idea of giving that country the works.

Racketeers in Chicago have just bombed their third beauty shop. Well, those fellows may have their own ideas as to how to lift faces.

SeenAnd Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Every morning at 7 o'clock the first load of ship-news men goes down the bay to meet the incoming liners.

Their report on what a visiting Englishman has to say on approaching the famous skyline, or an American financier's impressions of European trade, or the Parisian wardrobe of a returning actress will be read in the subways by the home-going New Yorkers.

Manhattan is just waking up when they start out to gather the day's gist of ship news.

MEETING THE BOATS. The barge office, where they gather, is at the Battery, beside the Ellis Island ferry ship.

Dawn is coming up over the East river like a blonde's back-hair. A group of perhaps 20 homeless men are warming their hungry bodies around a fire in a waste-paper can. In another group four youths, two of them sailors, are listening while a companion plays a harmonica. They have been up all night.

The customs cutter is waiting at its pier. It is the boat on which the ship-news reporters, known to the craft as "gangplank men," will go out with the immigration and customs inspectors to the ships tied up at Quarantine.

It is light now. The cutter's crew has been up for some time. The deck has been swabbed, the brass polished. One gob is swabbing his teeth at a faucet on the pier. Soon he joins shipmates at breakfast over a platter of beans.

Presently customs officials, in blue uniforms, and immigration inspectors, in olive drab, board the boat in twos and threes. They have been in the chief inspector's office to get their assignments.

Now they pull up chairs around a table in the boat's cabin and begin playing draw poker.

UNOFFICIAL WELCOMERS. The reporters arrive and the photographers. One of the cameramen has a new flashlight gun and the others make disparaging cracks about its size.

"That'll go off some time and blow up a ship," gags one of them. A reporter goes off to get a mug of coffee from the boat's galley.

Among the crowd is a clerk from a corporation office. He is hurrying out to meet the president of his company to tell him that while he was sailing back from Italy his mother was dying and they have a plane waiting to take him to her bedside.

The cutter gets under way, passing ferryboats jammed with commuters on their way from Staten Island.

The boat chugs into the narrow neck of water at Quarantine where a half-dozen ships are at anchor. It pulls up to the first liner and a ladder is placed from the cutter's low deck to that of the big ship.

Officials assigned to inspect that ship climb the ladder, shaking hands cordially with an officer who is waiting for them.

DETROIT'S BRAND NEW MAYOR SEEKS WORK FOR HUNDREDS

Murphy, Elected on Promise to Find Jobs, Turns to "Big Business"

BY BRUCE CATTON
Detroit — Mayor Frank Murphy, the new chief executive whom Detroit quite unexpectedly put into office at the recent special election, is beginning to prove that he had a very definite program in mind when he promised unemployment relief as a campaign platform.

Today the city is making the most determined, carefully-planned effort to relieve economic distress in its industrial districts that it has ever made. It is getting the facts about every worker in the city who lacks a job; it is providing work for as many as it can take care of and it is raising money to take care of the others.

All in all, it is beginning a very big job; and on the outcome of this job depends the political future of Mayor Murphy.

If the job succeeds, Mayor Murphy will have a chance to become one of the state's greatest political leaders. Only 27, he will find himself at the opening of a potentially great career.

If it fails, Mayor Murphy in all probability will find the path to political oblivion.

Before going into this interesting question of Mayor Murphy, however,

Cleveland—By a clever use of short shifts, new public construction work made possible here by a $200,000 bond issue will provide parttime jobs for 200 men during the next two weeks.

Frank Director Samuel Newman in charge of the work, says there will be a fortnight of work for 500 men. The first 500 to be hired will work three days and then will give way to 500 others, who in turn will give way to a third 500 at the end of three more days, with a fourth 500 waiting to relieve them three days later. Each man will get 60 cents an hour, receiving $14.50 for his three-day period.

Men in unusually bad financial straits will be given two three-day periods of work, Newman says.

Prior to the election nobody knew just how many Detroiters were out of work. Estimates ranged from 80,000 to 200,000. All anyone knew was that there was a lot of unemployment.

As soon as he was elected, Murphy appointed an unemployment committee of about 200 men and women, all leaders in the city's business, professional and political life. This committee divided into subcommittees to handle separate angles of the problem and the subcommittees on research, headed by Dr. Frank A. Adams, minister, undertook to find out just how many jobless men Detroit had.

First the committee had to get help. Volunteers were asked for and hundreds responded. About 500 were chosen, practically all of the men and women who had had experience with the city election commission. Then 200,000 registration cards were printed and days were set for the registration of the jobless. Registrations were accepted at city hall, at the 15 police precinct stations, at several schools, a church and a downtown office building.

Long lines formed in front of these places. At the end of the first day more than 20,000 men had registered and to date, with registrations still continuing, more than 100,000 cards have been signed. The research committee believes that this represents approximately 200,000 unemployed, assuming that each card generally bears two names.

With this data, including a special list of cards bearing the name of

THE TOONERVILLE TROLLEY THAT MEETS ALL THE TRAINS

WHEN THE POWERFUL KATRINKA WANTS TO BE SURE THE CAR DOESN'T GO BY AND LEAVE HER.

those for whom immediate relief was needed, Mayor Murphy set out to get the jobs. First he summoned leading automobile manufacturers, including Edsel Ford, to a conference. A plan was drawn up to place men now holding jobs on half-time schedules, allowing jobless men to work the other half shifts. While this cut many incomes, it provided many who had no incomes at all with intermittent work.

Then the mayor ordered the city's public and private construction work set ahead wherever possible.

Next came the task of finding money for families whose breadwinners could not be given jobs. By leaving on each city patrolman and detective a monthly donation of a dollar, with a somewhat larger assessment for the higher officers, the sum of $1500 a month was provided. The Firemen's Relief Association has pledged another $1500 a month and the water department expects to raise $2000 a month.

The unemployment committee has been given the free use of a five-story building as headquarters, with most of the necessary chairs, tables, typewriters and so on donated gratis. Much of the equipment comes from the city election commission.

Thus the youthful mayor is tackling the unemployment situation; and the next few months will tell whether he is going to make a striking success or an unexciting failure.

Meanwhile—what of Murphy himself?

His rise to the mayoralty of Detroit has been spectacular and surprising. After serving in the adjutant general's department during the war, he became an assistant district attorney after the Armistice, resigning from the post to run for and win, a judgeship on the municipal bench, gaining that post before he was 30 years old. He was elected and four years later won re-election.

The most famous case to be tried before him was that of Dr. Sweet, a negro who was charged with murder committed while, with friends, he defended a newly-occupied home in a white neighborhood against an incipient mob assault. Murphy's charge to the jury was believed by many to be largely responsible for Dr. Sweet's acquittal; and it is noteworthy that in the last election he carried every negro precinct.

When the voters recalled Mayor Bowles recently and a special election to choose his successor became necessary, Murphy surprised everyone by resigning from the bench to enter the race. He was playing for big stakes. No one expected that he could win. There were five men in the race two leading newspapers were united on one of Murphy's opponents and the leading politicians felt that the young bachelor was too uncertain a figure to be trusted as part of anybody's machine.

Murphy made unemployment relief his chief platform plank. Probably because he promised definite measures to relieve the situation, he won election. And now he faces his big test.

If he comes through he will be the biggest figure politically in Detroit for many years. And if he fails—well, his day will be over.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"I KNOW that I wish I had a place in your thoughts," Jack answered promptly when Sue countered his question as to whether he had anything to do with her plans, by asking a question of her own. He was quiet then, a minute, and Sue waited, hoping that he would say the things she wanted him to say. When he spoke, his voice was sober.

"Sue, I'm going to get down to business and dig this winter. I've played long enough. But I'll need a lot of sympathy and understanding. The kind you can give a fellow. Will you back me up?"

"Of course I will! You know I will!" The two sentences flowed together.

Jack turned to Sue, and she caught her breath tremulously. If she could only see his eyes... did he just want her to be a sympathetic secretary... Oh surely, surely not! For she couldn't be! Not now! She would get out of his office if she was to mean nothing to him. Only— he was taking one hand from the wheel and now his hand was tilting her face toward him, the rose-cream cheeks and deep eyes with the mystery of untamed seas in their shining depths.

And then suddenly the car skidded, there was a crash and the car completed its giddy circle and stood still.

Jack's hands were on the wheel again and he was stopping the motor. Someone was opening the door of the car, and an angry voice shouted.

"Say, where do you think you're going? Can't you steer that pushcart in a straight line?"

"These roads and joy as the device," Jack was answering. "I'm no end sorry."

"Yeah? Well, tell that to my lawyers. You banged straight into me and about took the life out of the old boat. I've got your number. Here's my attorney's card."

Jack took the card and pocketed it, without glancing at it.

A traffic officer arrived, inspected the two cars, made a few notations and suggested that Jack follow the other car to the police station and tell it to the judge. At the police station they were told to appear in court at nine o'clock the next morning.

Out of sight of the others, suddenly Jack and Sue started to laugh. Sue didn't know why, but something that had been bothering her was suddenly released. The little hand of worry that had been clutching her heart had lightened.

Oh, there was magic in the words of a man, if he was the man whom a girl loved. And she could read those words to suit herself when she loved. That was the trouble. Perhaps she was gliding them with unmeaning glamor.

But there was the pressure of Jack's hand on her arm and the laughing tenderness of his eyes to show that he was there, anyway. And he had been there so long that, after all, that was the thing that mattered now.

When he kissed her, when his arm held her as closely as she had dreamed of being held, she tried to read his love into his actions. After all, hadn't Grace and Corinne and Sarah, too, always said that she was the type of girl to whom men did not make love unless they believed for a little while at least, that they meant it? Oh, not a gay and careless kiss!... she knew the way of all of that... but...

She knew, too, that she was straining toward Jack as hungrily as he was toward her.

NEXT: Sue makes a discovery.

When using dried or evaporated fruit in baking, a pinch of salt should be added, as this brings back the flavor of the fresh fruit. The same rule governs canned fruits.

When you wish to make gravy or soup with the water in which meat has been cooked, wring a cloth out in cold water and strain the liquor through it. No grease will go through.

To improve the flavor of currants and raisins in pudding and cakes, place them in a bowl, pouring boiling water over them and leave to soak over night. Drain and dry in oven before adding to other ingredients.

MISS ORNSTEIN IN CONCERT AT ITALIAN CITY

Miss Helen Ornstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ornstein, 708 E. North-st., recently appeared in a concert in Salsomaggiore, Italy, for the benefit of war orphans, according to an article which appeared in the Oct. 18 issue of "Musical Leader." The concert was given under the patronage of Adelbert Di Savola, Duke of Bergamo. The article is as follows:

"Herbert M. Johnson, manager of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, has received word that Helen Ornstein and Lydia Mihm, winners of the first Chicago Civic Opera European scholarships, appeared in a concert Sept. 15 at Salsomaggiore, Italy. The young artists were enthusiastically acclaimed by audience and critics. The affair was held under the patronage of Adelbert Di Savola, Duke of Bergamo and cousin of King Emanuel of Italy. The proceeds were for the benefit of the orphans of the war."

"At the close of the concert, Miss Ornstein and Miss Mihm were presented to the Duke, who expressed his pleasure in their singing. Each artist was presented with a gold medal inscribed 'Salsomaggiore, Sept. 15, 1930' on the one side and the artist's name on the other side. They were then invited to sign their names in the Duke's autograph album."

SUPPER PLANS COMPLETED BY ODD FELLOWS

Final arrangements for the Harvest supper on Oct. 29 for Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and their husbands and wives were made at the meeting of Konekio lodge Monday night at Odd Fellow hall. Unmarried members will be allowed to bring a friend to the affair. John E. Chase, Oconto, will be the principal speaker of the evening. A social hour will be held after the supper.

The Odd Fellow school of instruction will be held in the afternoon and evening of Oct. 31 at Green Bay. E. M. Brown, grand instructor of Illinois, will conduct the class in the work of the order. The initiatory degree will be conferred on a class of candidates in the evening at the Turner hall, Green Bay.

CANADIAN THINKS FEDERAL RESERVE SHOULD AID SLUMP

Suggests That Authorities
Buy $500,000,000 of U. S.
Bonds

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CPA)— T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, in an interview published in the Street Journal, places the responsibility for relieving this country of the present effects of excessive deflation squarely on the shoulders of the federal reserve authorities. His suggestion is that the federal reserve purchase $500,000,000 of government bonds as a means of reestablishing the commodity price level and so insulate new life into the business and investment world.

Mr. Macaulay's company has been for years one of the strangest advocates of common stocks for long term investment purchase. The success of his policy in this direction has been a notable one. He has frequently expressed his faith in strong American and Canadian equities, which is based on the resources of both countries and the mechanical skill and distributing ability of its industrial leaders.

TRACES PRICE DROP
In his interview Mr. Macaulay traces the decline in commodity prices in this country, which had been going on gradually between 1925 and 1929, as a result of lowered cost of mass production, improved machinery and other factors. The possibility that these prices would break still further until they have reached an average 15 per cent under that of a year ago was not taken into account at the time the stock market crash of last year. It is to this enormous deflation in commodity prices that Mr. Macaulay attributes many of the misfortunes with which this and other countries have since been afflicted.

Consequently, he believes that it is necessary to stabilize commodity prices before there can be any substantial revival in business. He argues that such stabilization can be accomplished through the agency of the federal reserve banks, which successfully prevented inflation during the period when the United States after 1921 was receiving an enormous amount of gold, but this gold was not permitted to become additional outstanding currency.

SITUATION REVERSED
The situation is now reversed. "We are suffering," says Mr. Macaulay, "from excessive deflation and it is again in the power of the federal reserve directors to render a great national service. It is certainly as important to prevent disastrous deflation and depression as it was to prevent undesirable inflation."

Mr. Macaulay points out that in the seven months to July 31, outstanding circulation decreased $499,000,000 and current advances of the federal reserve banks have shrunk to small proportions. He recommends that the federal reserve directors, in order to restore the commodity price level, purchase $500,000,000 of United States bonds. "The effect of this, as he sees it, on the mere announcement of such an intention of the federal reserve would be "to bring heavy buying in all lines of business, for the large purchasers of materials are apparently living from hand to mouth on the chance of being able to buy more cheaply later. Confidence would immediately replace gloom and the outlook would improve rapidly."

WOULD BOOST LENDING
Other effects of such a policy, Mr.
Macaulay predicts, would be an increased lending capacity on the part of the commercial banks by several billion dollars. "The first result of this expansion would be heavy purchasing of high grade bonds by the banks themselves. The bond market would steadily improve and besides reestablishing American business conditions, it would thus become possible again for foreign countries to finance their requirements in the United States. This would increase the purchasing power of the entire world and to the extent that purchases were made in America, would be further helpful to American industry."

An expansion of circulation by even $500,000,000, it is stated would not raise the figure to the average of the last ten years. Mr. Macaulay questions whether there would be any risk or danger to the federal reserve banks in holding an additional $500,000,000 of United States government bonds and paying for them

Our Children

By Angelo Patri
Katherine handed her mother a sheaf of papers and stood by with a worry wrinkle in her brow. Mother looked at the papers and bit her lip. Then she said, and there was complaint and censure in her voice,
"But why didn't you get a perfect mark? Surely it is as easy to get five examples right as four; it is just as easy to learn twenty words as it is to learn nineteen?"

"I have the highest marks in class, mother."

"Well, that's something. But never be satisfied until you get a hundred. There, there, I suppose you did the best you could but when a child can get so close to perfect it is hard to see why she does not make the little effort necessary."

That is the best way known to parents and teachers to make a child lose all interest in school work to make him hate school and all its work. Whoever got perfect marks anywhere anytime? Not even this mother who braved her child's spitefulness because she came so near perfection and failed.

It is so easy to see the defect. So easy to say, "Why isn't it perfect?
Fry it on yourself. Go to some school or teacher and take up a new subject and see how close to perfection you can attain. The child who scolded will beat you to pieces.
He gets far closer to perfection in any new study than you can get.
Still neither of you can be perfect.

An occasional hundred percent is due any child. Few children can get it many times in succession if the work is adjusted to his growth. If it is so easy that he gets a perfect mark time after time he is not making the proper growth. If it is too difficult for him to get a good mark time after a certain time it is poorly adjusted to him and he is making no growth. But always his mark should indicate him a little less than perfect.

The same thing holds good in behavior. The child who never gives his mother a moment's trouble isn't likely to give her anything else either. A lively growing child makes mistakes and many of them. He gets into trouble because he is experimenting in order to discover what life holds for him. He is troublesome because of his deep interest in living. That child who is so good that nobody ever found fault with him has no deep interests, is not experimenting, and won't be a very positive soul. Only the positive, eager, interested children arrive.

Please, then, be good enough to accept the children as a little less than perfect. I assure you they are much better that way. Follow the by issuing a similar amount of currency which would then become outstanding.

In Mr. Macaulay's opinion, the duration of the present depression rests in the hands of the directors of the federal reserve system. He believes that while they have never admitted any responsibility for price levels they have the power to control them. His own outlook on the future, he states, depends entirely on the course to be taken by those in authority."

WEALTHY PERSONS RESPOND WELL TO WELFARE DEMANDS

Smaller Contributions Decline. However, Society Officials Find

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—Surface indications today based upon available data, are that the year 1930 will record total benefactions for public welfare and education of about $2,500,000,000 this total marking a steady annual rise from $1,719,000,000 in 1921.

Wealthy Americans are responding generously to the urgent demands of the national depression, making their usual contributions and, in some instances, even larger donations, but relief agencies depending upon widespread public appeals are feeling the effect of the lessened national resources and are preparing for heightened activity in filling their mounting budgets.

John Price Jones, president of the John Price Jones Corporation, specialist in this field of public finance, believes that the nation as a whole is meeting bravely the pressing needs of the time.

ESTIMATE DIFFICULT
"Any estimate of benefactions must be made with great reservation," he said, "and at best can be only approximately correct. We have been following the situation closely during the year and our preliminary but by no means exhaustive studies indicate that total donations for education will be up about 20 per cent for the year; gifts to hospitals will be up perhaps 10 or 12 per cent and benefactions for public welfare down possibly two per cent.
These estimates, I repeat, are only rough approximations."

"The last three months of 1929 did not show any letdown in total contributions to philanthropy and charity and the year's totals were considerably above those of 1928.
The United Hospitals fund, for instance, was $665,000 in 1928 and $762,000 in 1929. Our returns, however, from a questionnaire covering the Christmas fund campaigns of 16 newspapers showed a drop from $562,948 in 1928 to $538,578 in 1929.
Of 15 college alumni funds, only four showed a drop in 1929 from 1928."

"This year has seen a number of large endowments, such as the Macy Foundation of $5,000,000 and the Walk Foundation of Pittsburgh, of $10,000,000, the former for medical research and the latter for general welfare. It does not appear that in the broad general fields of philanthropy, education and research there is as yet any serious money stringency. Obviously funds depending upon small contributions may have more difficulty, as they always do in times of depression."

OTHERS LESS OPTIMISTIC
Social workers and representatives of relief and welfare organizations are somewhat less optimistic than Mr. Jones and force a heavy pressure on the charity resources of the country if business depression should continue for any considerable time.
The welfare council of New York City, a coordination of 640 of the 1,200 welfare organizations in New York, finds sharp disagreement among its constituent organizations, some reporting contributions about as usual and others noting increasing difficulty in getting money to meet requirements. Homer Folks, secretary of the State Charities Aid association and chairman of the executive committee of the welfare council, observed that, as in the past, gifts were to a great degree commensurate with needs.

"When conditions get really bad, the public gives more generously," he said. "The urgent demand for funds usually follows a few months after the lowest point of the depression, and charity organizations are beginning to feel this increased demand now. Agencies began to feel a falling off in contributions last April, about five months after the start of the business depression. We feel, however, that the public will meet this situation, as it has always done."

The total capital fund of the 168
American foundations is $917,460,000.
The largest foundations are the Carnegie Corporation of New York, $135,000,000; the General Education board, $90,000,000; the Hershey fund, $60,000,000, and the Rockefeller fund, $150,000,000, with several others around $40,000,000. These foundations are established in their separate fields as follows: Individual aid, 48; educational, 36; scientific research, 33; child welfare, 26; public health, 22; social welfare, 18; international relations, 12; fine arts, 9; industry and business, 7. Some are spending income and some principal and no computation of their annual share in philanthropy and social relief is available.

Authorities agreed that any accounting, even conjectural, of the year's contribution would be complicated by recently inaugurated movements in industry and finance for unemployment relief throughout the country. On the whole, there was agreement that the nation was revealing not only marked generosity but remarkable resources in meeting the most insistent demands of recent

FIRST CASUALTIES AT BRAZIL CAPITAL

Rio de Janeiro Begins to Realize Bloody Civil War Being Fought

Rio de Janeiro—(AP)—Arrival of the first casualties from the southern front is bringing home to residents of this capital, one of the most beautiful cities of the world, that a bloody civil war actually is being fought just a few hundred miles away.

Until now Rio de Janeiro has remained so calm and with so little excitement beyond that incident to mobilization of volunteer and reserve armies in the outskirts, that war and revolution have been almost unthinkable.

Official communiques have been monotonous, all very much like that of this morning which says that government forces are maintaining their positions without change in all sectors. Sometimes a few details are added, as today, that General Santa Cruz, commanding at Bahia, is coordinating all military elements in that state in preparation for operations he is about to begin.

The banks passed their first day under the new opening order of President Washington Luis functioning normally as before their fifteen day "holiday" with the exception that they were not allowed to issue bills of exchange this privilege being reserved for the Banco do Brasil. Legal rate of the milreis was fixed at 9.5 to the dollar.

WARNS MOTORISTS OF CARBON MONOXIDE GAS

Now that the earth has rolled around to the season when motors are tight and garages cold in the early morning hours, Dr. F. P. Do-hearty, city physician, issues his annual warning against carbon monoxide gas.

He cautions all drivers to keep the garage doors open while they are warming up the engine, and advises that all cars be inspected for leaks in pipes which might transport gas into the body of a car while it is in motion.

"Often gas escapes into the ton-neau of a car while it is in motion, and unless enough air comes in from the outside to counteract it persons in the car are in danger of being "gassed," he said. "Another time of danger is when the motor of an enclosed car with windows closed is running."

He explained that carbon monoxide gas is quite odorless, and that it creeps upon a person insidiously, taking hold before the victim is aware that a poisonous gas is present. Because of this extreme caution must be taken to prevent contact with too much of the gas.

Nearly every business makes its greatest demands on the worker from mid-afternoon on.
Yet that is invariably the "zero

Recent scientific investigasweet beverage—even a glass of water sweetened with sugar fatigue sets in.

The reason for this lies in the quick digestibility of sugar.

RED CROSS CHAPTER PREPARES FOR ROLL

Annual Campaign for Members to Start on Tuesday, Nov. 11

Neenah—The membership roll call of the Neenah Red Cross chapter will begin Nov. 11, E. E. Lampert, chairman, announced. The roll call is an annual event occupying the time between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving. The roll call is emphasized by presidential proclamation and governors' statements.

"This support from the people in our territory enabled us to share in Red Cross work throughout the country, and to carry out an extensive program of service here, maintaining an office, a confidential exchange for family social work," he said. "This has been a very private and confidential service, and we have been able to help many families, Spanish war veterans and families and two Civil War widows and 150 civilian families have used this service."

"A summer program of First Aid and Lifesaving was carried on. Because Red Cross chapters are democratic in character, roll call is of great public significance. Membership carries a vote in chapter affairs, and signifies personal participation in local, national and international service. The long history of roll calls has proved beyond question that the opportunity of joining the Red Cross is one of the most highly regarded privileges."

Red Cross memberships are: annual $1 contributing $5, sustaining $10, and supporting $25. Only 50 cents of each of these goes to support the work done in the name of the organization by the national organization. The balance remains at home for local service.

NEENAH SOCIETY

Neenah—South Greenville Grange will celebrate its fifty-fifth anniversary Monday evening, Oct. 27. An appropriate program is being prepared by the committee, which will be followed by a supper. On Nov. 6 South Greenville Grange will conduct a bazaar, oyster supper and card party. The committee in charge includes: Mr. and Mrs. William J. LINGUISTIC BODY STUDIES AMERICAN AS IT IS SPOKEN

$700,000 Project to Be Conducted by Society of America

Madison —(P)—American as it is spoken is the $700,000 project to be conducted by the Linguistic Society of America under direction of 10 philologists, five of whom have served on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin.

The completed work will be a linguistic atlas of the United States and Canada and will provide an organized collection of the present forms of spoken language in these two countries, according to Miles L. Hanley, assistant professor of English at the university here and a member of the committee in charge.

It is to contain records, monographs of specific studies and maps with interpretive comment to explain dialects of districts. Efforts will be made to record pronunciation, accentuation, inflections, syntactical features and vocabulary, Prof. Hanley reports.

The committee aims to compile its work with definite views of learning the influences in shaping the spoken language of the two nations; of the local dialects and their relation to dialects of other localities; of the dialects of social classes in the same community and their relation; and to make laboratory surveys in articulation, intonation, nasal twang and other peculiarities.

Prof. Hanley explains the completed work will be of significance not only to the language historian, but also to historians of migration and population. The committee believes, he says, that the survey is urgent for language is rapidly being standardized through the influence of the public schools, increased travel and the radio.

"Many dialects soon will become extinct, while other will lose their individuality," he says.

Under the plans for the atlas, the work will cover a period of six years and surveys will be made of 500 to 1,000 representative communities in the United States and Canada. Dr. Hans Kurath, Ohio State university and former Wisconsin German professor, has outlined the work as follows:

The first year is to be spent in studying dialects of 10 key areas, typical of important dialects.

Two weeks will be used for getting a rough outline and the next, two months on gathering dialect forms, to be transcribed on phonograph records, phonetic writings and in a later monograph.

Work is to be expanded the next year with 20 field workers covering 40 communities. The studies will follow those of the first year.

Three years are to be spent in similar ways, but Dr. Kurath believes that the work will be developed far enough that 10 workers can reach between 600 and 750 communities. The fifth year will see completion of the field survey.

The last year is for the editorial work coincident with publishing the atlas.

Prof. Hanley reports that southern New England has been selected as the first area to be studied and the six-year plan will be put into effect with sending of field workers to that locality.

"We hope to find that the dialect of the Blue Grass regions of Kentucky will show connection with the speech of early Virginia; that dialects of certain communities in Iowa are traceable to New England," he says. He cites Wisconsin as an example where there are three elements that have had an important part in the dialect. They are Germans, Scandinavians and Swiss. He has studied Green county, settled by Swiss and says the first generation used unadulterated old Bernese, the second generation sort of "koiné," the third a literary German and the fourth English. The atlas would show this.

France has a linguistic atlas, Prof. Hanley says, while Germany, Italy and Eastern Spain are now engaged in publishing them.

Dr. Kurath is chairman of the committee and with Prof. Hanley other former Wisconsin professors on the committee are Dr. Leonard Bloomfield, University of Chicago and Dr. Edward Prokosch, Yale university.

Other philologists on the board are Prof. M. L. Hansen, University of Illinois; Prof. C. H. Grandgent, Harvard University; Prof. G. P. Krapp, Columbia university; Prof. John S. Kenyon, Hiram college, Ohio, and Prof. G. Oscar Russell, Ohio State university.

Harun-Al-Rashid Defends Lobster In German Court

Berlin —(P)—Harun-Al-Rashid championing a lobster in the first criminal court proved himself a worthy namesake of the famous caliph of Bagdad.

The chief exhibit in the case was a porcelain bowl filled with cracked ice on which was fastened by strings and wires a live lobster, gracefully reposing on salad leaves. The slight made court attendants smack their lips.

Harun-Al-Rashid, in this instance a retired colonel of the Turkish army, charged a Herr Martin, owner of a delicatessen shop, with wanton cruelty for imprisoning the delectable shell-fish in this manner. He told the court that as an old soldier he was not hampered by any false sentimentality about cruelty to animals but that he considered this method of displaying a live lobster the limit.

Herr Martin answered that this was the time honored method of confining lobsters on exhibition. If, however, the court preferred getting down to legal brass tacks, he said, not he but a professional decorator had mounted this crustacean specimen.

Professor Ludwig Bruchl, called by the court as expert, said that science had not advanced to the stage of knowing just when a lobster felt pain. He denied, however, that invertebrate animals experienced sense. Dr. Hienroth, director of the Berlin Aquarium, advanced the thesis that a lobster's discomforts really set in when he was caught and all later developments were as so many pin pricks.

The public prosecutor regretted that "this juridically and humanly interesting question could not be decided in court." While convinced of Herr Martin's indifference to the possible suffering of the lobster, he said, he had not been legally guilty of cruelty, so Herr Martin was acquitted.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and inhibits germ growth.

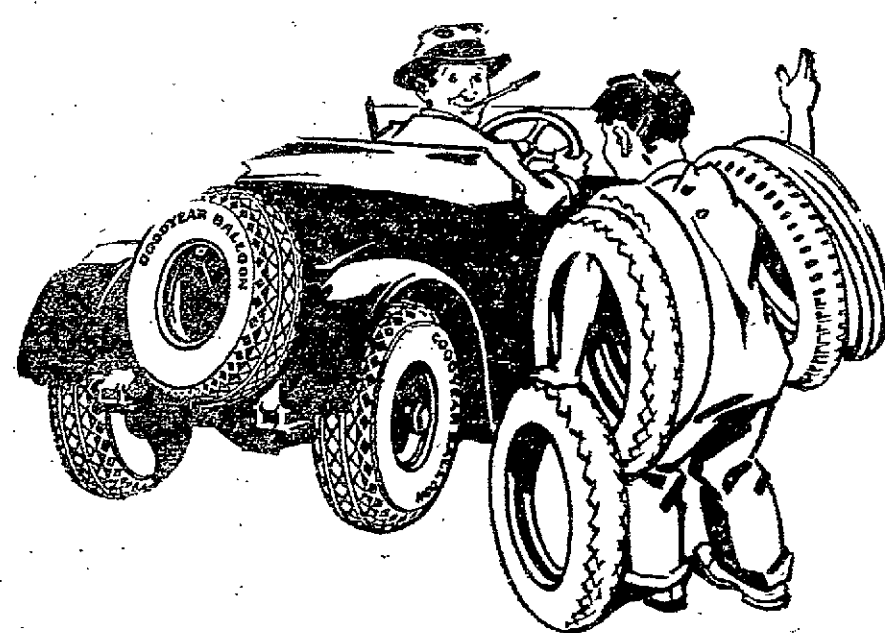

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

KONJOLA ENDS RHEUMATISM AND NERVOUSNESS

Stubborn and Painful Ailments Are Relieved Quickly—Lady Becomes Enthusiastic

MRS. CARRIE SMOTHERS

"For years I suffered from rheumatism, indigestion and nervousness," said Mrs. Carrie Smothers, 827 South Polk avenue, Mason City, Ia. "I took medicine after medicine without result. Rheumatism attacked me in my hips and the pains extended down my limbs to my ankles. I was in constant misery from indigestion. The pressure from gas accumulations affected my heart action; I became extremely nervous, and was unable to sleep properly at night."

"I knew many people who had been helped by Konjola and I had taken this fine medicine but a week when I noticed a decided change in my condition. Week after week, as I kept up the treatment, I went on improving. Today, instead of walking lame, I walk as an able-bodied woman. Indigestion is gone as are those terrible heart pains. I am no longer nervous and I rest well. I have taken six bottles of Konjola but I shall continue the treatment as long as I feel improvement."

Tens of thousands of men and women have endorsed Konjola after from six to eight bottles brought amazing relief from ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and from rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Appleton, Wis., at Schlicht Bros. Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

87,000 FANS MAY WATCH WOLVERINE, ILLINOIS BATTLE

Noble Kizer Driving Boiler-makers Hard for Invasion of Wisconsin

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO — (AP) — Stirred by Michigan's apparent return to the status of a first class football power, Wolverine fans to the number of nearly 87,000 will watch Harry Kizer's eleven strive against Illinois Saturday at Ann Arbor.

The attendance at the Purdue-Michigan clash two weeks ago was much lower than a Big Ten championship contest usually attracts at Ann Arbor. But the Wolverines defeated the 1929 champions, and ticket sales for the Illinois game speeded up. Last Saturday's victory over Ohio State was all that was required to virtually assure a capacity crowd in the huge stadium, and the biggest attendance of the middlewestern season to date appears certain.

While the Wolverines have won their pair of conference games, Coach Kizer has been unable to present the same team on any occasion. Injuries have forced him to alter his battle front each week, and Saturday will provide no exception. Howard Auer, tackle, and Norm Daniels and Rod Cox, ends, are out with injuries, and Kizer is still seeking suitable replacements.

ILLINI REVENGED

The Illini lineup also will be revamped. The 32 to 0 smacking hand-out by Northwestern last week caused Coach Zupke to call in the reserves. Captain Olaf Robinson will be at quarter instead of fullback, and Pete Yanuskus and Gil Berry will be at the half. Ed Sutton, who played with the "B" team last week, probably will be the other member of the quartet instead of Ernie Chaffin.

Purdue will reach a crisis Saturday against Wisconsin. The Boiler-makers' defeat by Michigan does not mean they are out of the Big Ten race, but a defeat by the surprising Badgers may be accepted as a death blow to Purdue's hope of retaining the title it won last year for the first time in history.

KIZER WORKING PURDUE

Coach Noble Kizer has worked his team hard this week and has said that Purdue will shoot the works against the Badgers. Alex Tunevitch probably will play only a few minutes, but Quarterback Jack White and Moss, an end, will be back for the first time in two weeks. Wisconsin's defense has caused Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite little worry this week, but the offense, which functioned so brilliantly against Pennsylvania and Chicago, has not been so good.

Both Northwestern and Chicago, with non-conference games this week, are looking ahead to more important tussles a week hence. Northwestern does not anticipate much trouble from Centre college, and Coach Hanley is working for Minnesota. Chicago has Mississippi this week, but the Princeton engagement next week is absorbing the attention of Coach Stagg.

Indiana today headed toward Dallas, Tex., where the Hoosiers will assist in the dedication of Southern Methodist University's new stadium. Coach Pat Page has drilled his men on forward pass defense to the exclusion of almost everything else, but was more hopeful of holding the Mustangs to a low score, than winning.

Coach Knute Rockne has assigned six ends, 16 linemen and 16 backs to the task of going after Notre Dame's fourth straight victory of the season at Pittsburgh Saturday. The Irish have operated well in practice this week and the east's first look at the 1930 Rockne edition, will be a look at Notre Dame at top form.

PRO GOLFERS ARRIVE AT SALT LAKE CITY

Salt Lake City, Utah — (AP) — Professional golfers, including in their ranks Al and Abe Egan, of Chicago and George von Elm, recently turned professional, today faced their final practice round in preparation for the $5,000 open tournament tomorrow.

Such nationally prominent golfers as Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour, and Johnny Aftrell have indicated they will participate.

C. E. Clark of Tulsa, Okla., shot a brilliant 68 in a warm-up round, his score being four under par. Hal Gulshof of Dallas, Tex., and several other visiting stars have jolted par in practice.

LOUGHRAN, MAIER WILL CLASH TONIGHT

Loughran expects to weigh in at about 185 and Maier at 182.

NEW COACH AT DE PAUL

Chicago — (AP) — "Red" Maier, star halfback at Notre Dame in 1921-23, today was added to the DePaul University football coaching staff as an assistant to head coach Eddie Anderson.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
THE deal whereby the Cubs acquired Bob Smith, the "Braves" pitcher, was a sweet one for the Hornsby club. . . . Smith is a pretty nice pitcher, though he was an infidel when he came to the majors. . . . Smith won 11 and lost 14 during 1929 for the sixth-place Bostonians. . . . Bob is from Rogersville, Tenn., and is 32 years old. . . . Quite a few of the lads are predicting that the deal whereby the Robins acquired Lefty O'Doul and Fresno Thompson from the Phils will bring the pennant to Flatbush next year. . . . A terrific outfield there. O'Doul, Fredenck and Herman. . . . But let's take a look at that Vanderbilt tooth 11 team. . . . they are already being considered as a Tournament of Roses contender this year.

Miller today consented to play in the lineup of former Notre Dame stars in a charity football game with Northwestern University's former aces. ECLIPSE PHOTOGRAPHS REPORTED SUCCESSFUL

Washington — (AP) — A message received Wednesday at the naval observatory said photographs of the sun's eclipse on the island of Niuafof in the South Pacific were successful.

Commander C. H. J. Keppler, in charge of the United States Naval observatory eclipse expedition, said 41 coronal pictures had been taken of the eclipse which occurred yesterday at approximately 5 o'clock p. m. E. S. T., or 10 a. m., Niuafof time.

Officials of the observatory said the scientists had observed six medium streamers of light. Brief showers which preceded the total eclipse did not affect the photographs. Commander Keppler reported the natives were interested and not frightened at the eclipse.

SPEEDY FLIGHT

Rome — The Royal Italian Club's round-Italy airplane flight to promote the popularity of flying has finished with remarkable results. The flight, featuring entries from all parts of Italy, created much interest in aviation and originated several private sales of planes. The winning plane, a Breda, made an average speed of 104 miles an hour over the 2170-mile course.

Morrow Opens Drive For Senate

Attributing the present business depression to war and post-war influences beyond the control of the national administration, former Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Republican candidate for United States Senator from New Jersey, is pictured above as he opened his campaign in Newark. He reaffirmed his stand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and repudiated "wholly unauthorized statements" that he may be an opponent of President Hoover for the 1932 Republican nomination for the Presidency.

Roar Of Industry Awakens Sleepy Tennessee Valley

BY ROY E. HUTCHENS
Knoxville, Tenn. — (AP) — The hill bill is fast disappearing from East Tennessee and the factory workman is taking his place.

Within the walls of the East Tennessee valley, the simple mode of living of a half million people is being revolutionized by harnessing a score of streams tumbling down the southern Appalachians.

Industrial development in the "Ruhr of America," a name now commonly applied to the section which includes not only East Tennessee, but the western Carolinas, has few parallels in the "new south."

Transformation of a rather obscure section is reflected by the 1930 census which placed two cities in the valley, Chattanooga and Knoxville, in the 100,000 class. A half dozen towns at the head of the valley have doubled or tripled in the last 10 years.

Water power in this section, secret of the metamorphosis, has held attention since the government in 1918 started construction of the Wilson dam on the Tennessee at Muscle Shoals, Ala. This plant, largest in the valley, has a capacity of 260,000 horsepower.

But Muscle Shoals is only a hint of what's brewing. A survey of East Tennessee streams by army engineers shows possible utilization of about 140 water power projects, which could generate 1,590,000 horsepower.

Proposals include a $43,000,000 dam on the Clinch river, near Knoxville, provided for in a Muscle Shoals bill which failed to pass the last congress. It would have been one of the largest storage dams in the region.

Actual developments find the Aluminum Company of America with plants at Alcoa, at the foot of the Smoky mountains, near the mouth of the Little Tennessee.

Where in 1913 hogs and cattle fed, shrill whistles now signal an army of 3,500 to work in a model city, with space provided for an increase to 35,000 and an acre of parks set aside for every 100 residents. Just now

Italians Seek America As Ally In African Trade War

BY ANDRUE BERDING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Rome — (AP) — An economic alliance between the United States and Italy for the commercial penetration of Africa is being urged here by business men and editorial writers.

The United States would provide the money and Italy would furnish, through her four Italian colonies—Tripoli, Cirenaica, Somaliland and Eritrea—the gateways to the African interior.

The Italo-American alliance, in the opinion of economists here, would offset and possibly overbalance the similar Franco-British alliance.

The advantages would be: for Italy, development of her own colonies, an improvement of trade relations with African states, the creation of new lines of communication; for the United States, the acquisition of buying rights in rich fields of raw materials, and a general bettering of her trade with Africa.

Italy's colonies do not furnish her with the trade wealth that France and England derive from theirs, but they are in strategic positions. Tripoli, on the Mediterranean, is in the center of North Africa. Massaua, port of Eritrea on the Red Sea, and Mogadiscio, port of Italian Somaliland on the Indian Ocean, open the way to Abyssinia and the Sudan.

Italy's trade with Africa is growing fast. In the last fiscal year her total exports reached 1,338,198,000 lire, or $65,000,000, and her imports 907,131,000 lire. Her exports jumped 16.12 per cent over her previous fiscal year, and her imports diminished 10.85 per cent, giving her a favorable trade balance.

"Italy and the United States," says the newspaper "Il Tevere" editorially, "constitute indispensable and complementary elements one for the other with regard for Africa."

Italy constitutes for America the sole great European power completely independent of the Franco-British bloc. The United States constitutes for Italy the gold mine necessary to the development of an Italian economy equal to that of the biggest colonial powers.

Italy is the youngest of African colonizers. Only in the last few years has she been able to capitalize her advantages in North Africa. During the war she had to recall her colonial troops first sent there in the war with Turkey in 1912, and tribal chieftains seized all the territory except a narrow coastal strip. Now, under the aegis of Mussolini, she hopes to wring a creditable share of colonial trade from under the noses of her rivals, England and France.

Dr. O'Keefe's office now open.

HUGE BRITISH PLANE HAS 107-FOOT SPREAD

Rochester, England — (AP) — Hurling her ten tons through the air apparently without effort, the float sea-plane Valetta is being given her final test flights here.

Designers of the ship claim it is the largest of its type in the world. Capable of carrying 17 passengers at a top speed of 140 miles an hour, the high wing monoplane still has several tests to make to determine her maneuverability and climbing powers, but so far the ship has met the expectations of her designers, Short Brothers.

The ship was constructed for the air ministry and will be used to make comparison tests between the new plane and the flying boat Calcutta, also built for the air ministry by the same firm.

The plane is 69 feet long with a wing spread of 107 feet. The cabin is 17 feet long and 6 feet wide, is supported by two 40 foot long floats located 20 feet apart.

The high school team will travel to Clintonville for the annual battle with Oshkosh boys on Friday afternoon. The Orange and Black squad is decidedly stronger than last year and will give the Red and Whites a stiff game. The next high school game at home will be with East De Pere on Wednesday, Nov. 3.

SCHOOL EXPENDITURES ARE LESS NEXT YEAR

New London—Public school expenditures for 1931 will be $2,220 less than in 1930, according to figures of the school board. Next year's expenditures amounting to $69,245 were offset by a return to the citizens of $20,000. This sum was received from the state and tuition charged out of town pupils. The ensuing year's budget calls for $67,045, with a return from the state and tuition fees amounting to $20,030. This will make the net cost of maintaining the school system, $47,015 as against $49,235 last year.

ONLY MEMORIES REMAIN OF BREWERY

Kaukauna — All that remains of Kaukauna's oldest brewery is an old stone foundation and memories. Stories are still told by elderly residents of the fine brew that was once the product of the brewery located in Tanner's addition, just off of Tenth st.

The brewery was opened by the late Mike Kline about 40 years ago. After operating the small brewery for about two years it was sold to Peter and Jacob Helf of Fond du Lac. The brothers moved to Kaukauna and enlarged the small plant. Up to date equipment was put in the new plant which was valued at $30,000.

Milwaukee and Appleton breweries were sending no shipments of beer to the city at that time and a large business was done by the Helf brothers. They catered to business in all the towns and villages surrounding Kaukauna. The beer was of excellent quality and won first prize in a state exhibit in Milwaukee about that time.

After operating the brewery for about five years Peter Helf built a second brewery on the north side of the city at the corner of Tenth and Desnoyers sts. This brewery was later sold to John Regenfus, who still owns it.

Jacob Helf continued to operate the brewery on the south side of the city until his death. A few years after his death the equipment was sold. Not long after that the building was torn down. Only the old stone foundation has remained for the last 20 years to show where the plant stood.

This map shows the gains and losses of farms throughout the nation as reported thus far by 1930 census figures from 42 states. With a loss of 350,881 farms in 24 states and gains of 117,764 farms in 18 other states since 1920, the net loss for 42 states reporting is 233,215 units.

FEWER FARMS AND MORE PRODUCTION SHOWN BY CENSUS

Net Loss of 233,215 Units Reported from 42 States in Country

BY FRANK I. WELLER

Washington — (AP) — A combination of fewer farms and increased production has indicated to census officials a definite trend toward larger farm units.

With reports still incomplete from Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, California, Iowa and Michigan, the census shows a net loss of 233,215 farms for the entire United States. For the most part losses are grouped in the older farm regions of the east, south and midwest where modern large scale farming has caused buying-in of smaller farms in the interest of more economical production.

Remote regions not reached by good roads, telephone or electric service, or where modern machinery is not adaptable, have seen an outright abandonment of land.

That situation is particularly noticeable in Georgia and South Carolina, and to a lesser degree in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Kentucky and southern parts of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Readjustment has worked from the other end in such states as Oklahoma, Arkansas and Mississippi, where increase in number of farms suggests the breaking up of huge, half-cultivated holdings.

With the exception of Idaho and Montana, the west—birthplace of "corporation" farming—shows an increase in the number of individual farms.

The great grain region embracing Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota, which is most truly representative of conditions favorable to corporate operation of vast acreage, likewise is most truly representative of the swing toward more farm units.

Broadly, the agricultural census appears to reveal a movement toward the alternative between the

LOSSES IN 24 STATES OFFSET GAINS IN 18

Highlights in the nation's trend to fewer and larger farms, as indicated by 1930 census returns:

There are 350,881 fewer farms in 24 states than in 1920.

There are 117,764 more farms in 18 other states.

Of 42 states, five show loss of farms in every county.

New Hampshire shows greatest rate of loss, its farms having decreased by 27 per cent since 1920.

Arizona, with 32 per cent more farms, has the greatest proportional gain.

Mississippi, with 40,352 more farms than in 1920, shows greatest numerical gain, while Georgia leads in numerical losses with 34,480.

small family farm too circumscribed for efficient operation, and the corporation farm of several thousand acres.

Declaring that the agricultural organization of the future need not be limited to a choice between the two extremes, the chamber of commerce of the United States says a good middle ground would be a system of farms three or four times the present average size, but still operated by family labor.

A second alternative, it says, would be group management of individually owned farms.

Chairman Legge of the farm board is champion of the latter suggestion, particularly in areas devoted primarily to the production of major crops. Advocating the consolidation of unprofitable wheat farms into large units, the chairman suggests cooperative production rather than dispossession of the small land owner.

"Studies indicate that the time is past when wheat can be grown profitably on small acreage," he says, "and that there will have to be a readjustment in the size of the farm unit where wheat is depended upon as a cash crop."

The grouping of farms, he says, would facilitate bank loans in that it would make one borrower a good credit risk whereas there may now be two or three bad ones.

The census has been looked forward to as an appraisal of advantages as between the family farm and the corporation farm. While large scale farming is well established, more than 2,000 corporations engaged in farming in 1928 represented only six per cent of the total gross income of American agriculture.

In a survey of large scale farming, the chamber of commerce says corporation farming still is a negligible factor in the social organization of rural communities. Its growth probably will be slow. It is doubtful whether corporation-operated farms ever will encroach seriously upon the small units.

Extensive development of large scale farming, the chamber says, would be hampered by the difficulty of obtaining land in workable units. Many of the large farms now operating owe their existence to special conditions which do not hold for most farms.

Taken as a group, the chamber says, large scale farms apparently have been no more, nor any less, successful than the average of the family-sized farms.

"It appears then," the chamber says, "that mere incorporation or organization of farming enterprises on a large scale will not automatically solve the problems of the agricultural industry. In order to secure greater net returns than are secured from the family type of

ADOPT NEW PLAN TO MANAGE DRAMATICS

A new plan of business management of Lawrence college dramatics will be put into effect this year, according to F. T. Cloak, director of dramatics. Allan Arthur, a senior, has been named general business manager for all Lawrence Theatre productions for this year. Mr. Arthur will name an assistant from the junior class who will aid him with each production this year and will receive the general management next year.

A new business manager for each play has caused considerable waste of time in past years, and we believe that the new plan will elimi-farmers, large scale farms must achieve an efficiency considerably greater than the average of such farms now in operation.

While there has been a net decrease in the number of farms in the United States, and all states thus far reporting show losses in some counties, not every state showed a net decrease.

Those in which losses by counties exceeded gains include New York, South Carolina, Tennessee, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, Missouri, Montana, Idaho, Georgia, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and the District of Columbia.

The loss for the 24 states was 350,881 farms, and the district, 98 States showing a net gain in the number of farms were Arkansas, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Washington, Alabama, Oregon, South Dakota, Nevada, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, North Dakota, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona, Florida and North Carolina. The total gain for the 18 was 117,764 farms.

While no state in the 42 reporting to date showed a gain in every county, farms were lost in every county of New York, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Ohio.

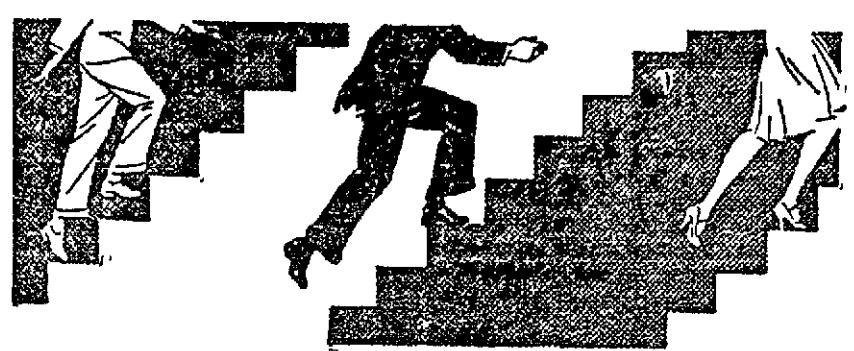

New Hampshire showed the greatest rate of loss, its number of farms decreasing 27.6 per cent since 1920. Arizona, increasing 32.9 per cent, showed the greatest rate of gain in farm numbers.

The south presented a curious pattern, both gaining and losing the greatest number of farms. Mississippi led the country in gains, chalking up 40,352 more farms than it had 10 years ago. Georgia led the losing column with 34,480 farms.

With 67 counties gaining and only nine losing, Mississippi had the fewest county losses.

ate much of this confusion in the future according to Mr. Cloak. Tickets for "The Truth About Blyde" will be on sale Nov. 1. The play, which is to be presented on Friday, Nov. 7, is the first production of the Lawrence Theatre this season.

Shanghai—(AP)—Chinese merchants and bankers residing in Australia and the South Sea Islands have formed a syndicate to aid industry here, announcing they will spend $50,000,000 for new factories if the government will give them a monopoly.

BYRD SPEAKS HERE NEXT MONTH ABOUT POLAR EXPEDITION

Hero of Antarctic to Appear in City Nov. 19 With Pictures of Trip

Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd, hero of the North and South poles and conqueror of the Atlantic, will tell his own story of his magnificent South Polar Expedition in Appleton on Nov. 19, appearing in this city under the auspices of the Appleton Woman's club.

Admiral Byrd, who will use 9,000 feet of film to illustrate his lecture, has many notable exploits to his credit, one of the most interesting the fact that he was the first man to use aviation to discover a new land, survey it and land on it for scientific investigation.

The Byrd Expedition has to its credit the exploration and observation of a total area which, if superimposed upon a map of the eastern half of the United States, would extend in a wide belt from Chesapeake Bay westward and around the head of Lake Michigan northward to beyond Duluth and embracing the greater part of the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and about half each of Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Of this area it is conservatively estimated that 150,000 square miles were surveyed by aerial camera, or a territory equivalent to nearly the whole of West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The total distance flown was about 7,100 miles and over 2,100 miles were covered by sledge. In addition, oceanographic observations were made on the 2,500-mile stretch between the Ross Shelf Ice and New Zealand.

The South Pole plane, "Floyd Bennett," being groomed for its flight

Over mountains such as these lays the South Pole

The above picture shows Admiral Byrd, who will lecture in Appleton on Nov. 19, under the auspices of the Appleton Woman's club, his plane as it was being prepared for flight and the mountains beyond which lies the South Pole. Admiral Byrd will use 9,000 feet of film to illustrate his address, which will be given at Memorial chapel.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
"SCORPIO"

If October 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m. and 11 p. m. to midnight.

Astrological influences on this date favor an active life, particularly physical exertions. Events will show that only the best horses are handicapped. A journey and small change are shown. Do not entrust important matter to others—"If you would have your business done, go; if not, send."

The child born on this October 24th will have an active, restless spirit, but a frank, honest, sincere, loyal and liberty-loving nature. It will be drawn towards science, philosophy and religion. It will possess warm affections and sympathy, and will never be able to accumulate material possessions.

Being born under the sign of Scorpio, you should have a very determined, reserved, tenacious and secretive nature. You have unmistakable traits of character that cause you to be either very much liked or very much disliked. Your somewhat suspicious nature causes you to be distrustful, and your vindictiveness and fault-finding tendencies may be carried to an abnormal degree. Amidst your traits, you have the grit and backbone which enables you to achieve higher attainments than most of those born in other signs. If the desire is awakened, you will be able to completely overcome your most odious faults, or to so harness them that they will work for your good. Your passionate, animal instincts are very strong, but when they have been conquered and temperance learned, you will be able to rise to great spiritual heights. It has been said "the greater the animal the greater the man."

You are endowed with an "eagle eye" and insatiable thirst for finding out the true nature of things. Many occult researchers, chemists, inductive philosophers and detectives owe their faculties to this sign. You can criticize perfectly and impartially, and you are able to give your judgment in a decisive and clear manner.

A series of difficulties in the early part of your life will eventually lead on to honours and success. You will not find your true mate early in life, and it is probable that you will marry more than once.

CHEMICAL FOUND TO KILL ORCHARD PESTS

Cornelia, Ga.—(AP)—Entomologists have found an effective remedy for the peach borer — para-dichlorobenzene.

The preparation, says Oliver L. Sapp of the United States department of agriculture, can be used safely on trees four years old or older. Three-fourths of an ounce of the chemical applied in a one-inch band around the trunk of a tree will prove effective in eliminating the most destructive of peach tree pests, he declares.

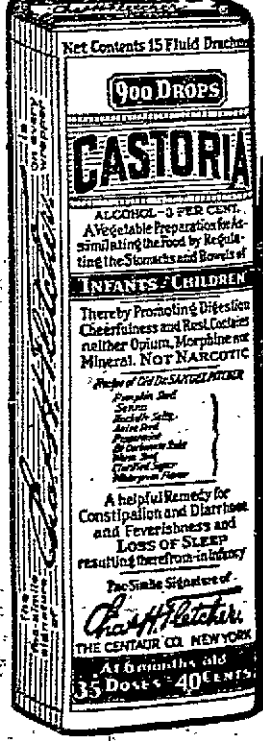

Para-dichlorobenzene should be used in the fall months. Experiments with it were conducted by Charles H. Allen, entomologist at the Georgia fruit pest and parasite laboratory here.

DROUGHT WON'T STOP CORN HUSKING BEES

Topeka, Kas.—(AP)—Plenty of corn fields are available for husking contests this fall despite the summer's drought, says Raymond Gilkeson, manager of the Kansas state and national contests.

After a trip in Kansas, Gilkeson said he had received offers of numerous fields that would produce from 50 to 75 bushels of corn to the acre.

Fields will be selected for the contests soon, and Gilkeson hopes to hold the state and national husking bees in different parts of the state.

FUSSY, fretful . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child, Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

MAESCH TO PLAY AT TWILIGHT RECITAL

Professor of Organ to Appear in Program Friday Afternoon

The first of a series of 10 twilight organ recitals during the fall and winter season at First Congregational church by La Vahn Maesch, professor of organ at Lawrence Conservatory of Music, will be given at 4:30 Friday afternoon. Mr. Maesch will play numbers by Frank, McKinley, Bach, Stoughton and Dethier.

The other programs each of which will take about 45 minutes each will be held on Nov. 7 and 24 Dec. 12 and 19 Jan. 16, Feb. 6 and 20, March 6 and 20.

Mr. Maesch's programs are characterized unusual technical command of the tonal expressive powers of the pipe organ.

The organist has studied under some distinguished masters of organ playing. During the past summer he studied with Palmer Christian and American concert organist at Ann Arbor Mich. and with Marcel Dupre, celebrated organ virtuoso and pedagogue, in Paris.

FOOL-PROOF PLANE

Berlin — The Fokker - Wulf airplane works at Bremen have perfected the "Emte" (duck) plane which is said to be fool-proof. This plane can fly, but it can not fall, it is said. Its landing ability is due to the fact that it is equipped with a special device which allows the plane to glide slowly to earth in an ever-widening circle without a hand on the controls and with the engine dead. Wings of the plane are wooden and the body is metal.

Plays at Church

La Vahn Maesch, professor of organ at Lawrence Conservatory of music, will present a series of 10 twilight organ recitals at the Congregational church, the first to be held at 4:30 Friday afternoon. Each recital will last about 45 minutes and the public is invited.

NEW YORK SUN PUTS INFLUENCE BEHIND GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT

Independent Republican Paper Praises Democratic Candidate's Regime

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1930, by Post Pub. Co.
New York—(CPA)—Some idea of how the political battle in New York state is going may be derived from the fact that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, has won the support of the New York Sun, independent Republican newspaper with the greatest influence in the evening newspaper field in the metropolis.

Two years ago the Sun supported Herbert Hoover for president and Franklin Roosevelt for governor. The Sun also supported Governor Smith in his last gubernatorial campaign.

The basis for the editorial announcement is an interesting one in that a line is drawn between conservatism and liberalism. The argument is made that in recent years the struggle for control in the Empire state has not been so much a conflict between the Democratic and Republican parties as between two schools of thought.

"On one side," says the Sun, "are the leaders of the legislature, ultra-conservative; on the other, governors like Hughes, Smith and Roosevelt, conservative liberals of progressive minds. Hughes had two terms and Smith four; Roosevelt is campaigning for his second term. The question now before the voters of the state is whether they wish to continue Governor Roosevelt in office."

PRaises Governor's Record
"Has Mr. Roosevelt been a good governor?" Looking back over his term—two months in office, the Sun must conclude that he has done his best to keep the promises he made in 1928. He has brought a truce in the water power war. He has put through an old age pension system. He has pushed the program started under Governor Smith's administration for the rehabilitation of state hospitals and prisons. He has done all possible for all rural counties in the way of better schools and lower taxes. The enactment of the new inheritance laws is one of the accomplishments of his administration.

"It is not always for a man of ideals and ambitions to take up where his predecessor left off and carry out the unfinished work. Yet Mr. Roosevelt has done this. With the Smith program and has done so faithfully and willingly, as if he himself as the author of the reform which the vigorous Smith began, all this without attempt to take for himself a lot of unearned credit."

The Sun points out that it has a high regard for Charles H. Tuttle, the Republican candidate, because of his record in dragging to light Tammany scandals but it also declares that Governor Roosevelt has acted creditably and that "there is no evidence that the governor is responsible for any of the political indecencies" and that "his whole life, his record in public office refute the suggestion." Again continuing argument that Mr. Roosevelt is experienced, while his opponent is not, in state government the Sun concludes that New York state should not be deprived of the services of Governor Roosevelt and Lieutenant Governor Lehman and that both should be re-elected.

CHANGED ATTITUDE
The significance of the Sun's declaration, coming as it does from a newspaper which has supported all the Republican candidates for the presidency in the present generation, is that state affairs are no longer based upon hide-bound tradition in politics. Mr. Roosevelt has had to deal with a Republican legislature and yet has made progress in getting legislation through. There is no doubt that there is less partisanship with relation to the governorship of New York state nowadays than there was 20 years ago. This is indicated in the fact that Mr. Roosevelt carried the state in 1928, when former Gov. Al Smith on the national ticket, lost the electoral vote.

Mr. Roosevelt's success this autumn is being predicted pretty generally now, with a swing of independent Republican votes to his side in the last few days, based largely on the fact that the larger state questions are coming to the fore inasmuch as both the Republican and Democratic candidates for governor are on the wet side of the prohibition controversy.

BRAZIL REVOLUTIONISTS CLAIM NEW ADHERENTS

Curitiba, Parana, Brazil.—(CP)—The Brazilian revolutionary command was informed today that the Nineteenth battalion of chasseurs, stationed at Timbo, state of Bahia, had revolted and joined the insurgent movement.

Timbo is a railroad center about 100 miles away from Bahia, third largest city of Brazil, and the insurgent forces claimed that the federal detachment opened up the way for their advance directly into Bahia on the railroad line between the two cities.

It was presumed here that the army of Captain Tavora, which within the past few days has invaded and over-run the states of Pernambuco, Alagoas and Sergipe, cannot be far from Timbo if it has not already reached this point in its advance down the coast toward Bahia, or Sao Salvador.

Rebel troops claimed yesterday to have repelled a strong federal attempt to destroy Senegre bridge, across the Rio Taguary just south of Itarare. The effect would have been to cut the line of communication of the insurgent vanguard which has advanced beyond Itarare into Sao Paulo, and to have stranded it north of the river without means of getting supplies.

Armistice Day Means a Lot to Them

They fought from opposite trenches in the World War, but now Otto Miller, left, and Lawrence Crossland, right, are neighbors and real buddies, teaching Boy Scouts the benefits of peace. The latter is scoutmaster of a Salt Lake City troop and the German veteran is his assistant. Miller fought in the Kaiser's army for two years, without receiving a scratch, until he was captured by Crossland's unit at St. Mihiel; Crossland was in action seven months, carries five bullet wounds and was gassed.

Geodetic Survey Covers Country With Markers

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington.—In 13 years the United States will be so thickly dotted with little bronze markers, determining the distance above or below sea level or the latitude and longitude, that no one will be able to get more than 25 miles away from one of them.

That will be one result of perhaps the most comprehensive geodetic survey ever made by any country in the world, which is about to be undertaken by the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

MUST NOT BE REMOVED
The bronze markers will be disks about three and a half inches in diameter and will be firmly planted in bed rock or in blocks of concrete. A $250 fine or imprisonment is the penalty for disturbing them. Some of them will be "bench marks," which is the term for markers recording the elevation and others will mark triangulation stations, announcing the exact latitude and longitude as fixed in the carrying of the survey's method.

"Geodesy" comes from the noun "geodesy," which is a swell word for anybody's vocabulary and is the science and art of measuring parts of the earth's irregular surface by triangulation and astronomical observations. Geodesy includes determination of the magnitude and figure of the earth and is distinguished from ordinary surveying—which is concerned with limited tracts such as farms and counties for which the curvature of the earth need not be considered.

More accurate and comprehensive data on the physical makeup of the 3,600,000 square miles of continental United States is considered essential and the survey now has money from Congress to begin its 18-year job. Some basic work already has been done.

Absolute accuracy in land measurement and location of given points with relation to the rest of the earth's surface will be achieved, for the government geodesists can measure long distances, even over the most rugged mountains, with a possible error of no more than one foot in 40 miles. From the control surveys which they will make will be established thousands of selected points for use as starting and checking points for local surveys. The Geological Survey will use the control surveys for its detailed topographic maps showing roads, houses, mountains, rivers, valleys, swamps and so on. The elevations of the bench marks and the latitudes and longitudes of the triangulation markers will be adjusted into a rigid continental system in such a way as to compare with rivets in the framework of a great steel structure.

Triangulation consists of measuring a base line on the earth's surface between two points and then selecting another point to form a triangle with the first two. The three angles at the corners are accurately measured and the other two sides of the triangle computed geometrically. The computed sides of the first triangle are used as known lengths for other triangles formed by measuring angles to other points ahead and the work thus proceeds from triangle to triangle without additional measuring bases. The Coast and Geodetic Survey, consequently, will be dividing the whole country into triangles, with each two triangles making a square.

EXTENSIVE OPERATIONS PLANNED

Plans for this fiscal year involve 2200 miles of triangulation in Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Tennessee, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas and California, and about 9000 miles of leveling operations (getting the elevation) in Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

And people will be finding more and more of the little bronze disks.

BRITAIN READY FOR 1931 CENSUS

London.—Some time in February or March, 1931, Great Britain will commence its job of counting its human possessions. It's been ten years since the last census, and this one is expected to yield much valuable information that past counts haven't.

This year it is expected that there will be 40,000 enumerators working, each receiving about $15 for his services. More than 20,000,000 schedules are expected to be filled in by heads of families, each containing information in regard to age, single or married, widowed or divorced, birthplace, occupation and employer, number of children, living rooms and other questions.

The compilation of statistics will be handled by girls and a robot machine which sorts 20,000 cards an hour into groups of ages, sex, locality, or into any of ten different groups at a time, according to information required.

TWO LADIES, ONE GENTLEMAN AFTER SEAT IN SENATE

Campaign in Illinois as Lively as Any Seen in Recent Years

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Chicago—(CPA)—Two ladies and one gentleman with pink whiskers are contending in Illinois this fall for the position of United States senator, in as spryly a campaign as the state ever enjoyed.

As the battle between these three enters the home stretch, before balloting on Nov. 4, the issue of feminism in politics is being given, and stress. The chest-thumping Mr. J. Ham Lewis, Democratic nominee, distinguished for his gallantry as an old-school southern gentleman, is playing adroitly on the latent prejudices of certain classes of voters against the woman in office.

Reference to his opponents is reduced to a clever formula. The mellifluous magic of his oratorical voice has been employed artfully to tag Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee and congressman-at-large, "the lady candidate." At the same time Mrs. Little Holman O'Neill, Anti-Saloon League aspirant for the senatorship, the third of the important contestants, is known the state over as "the other ladies candidate." Constant repetition has let the male voters know that a gentleman is battling ladies for office.

DANGERS IN PLAY
But the play has not been without its dangers, and more than one chuckle has been heard over Illinois from the references by this opponent to be-wiskered Colonel Lewis, as "the bearded-lady candidate."

It is said the Democratic nominee that his elegance of manner led him not long ago when he answered a telephone, to remove his hat and bow, the moment he heard a feminine voice come over the wire.

That gallant politeness has not restrained Colonel Lewis from taking advantage of the fine points of public prejudice toward feminism in the senate, however. His attack finds Mrs. McCormick sensitive—out of a deep feeling of resentment toward classification of candidates by sex. Her attitude was expressed following her nomination two years ago as Republican candidate for congressman-at-large.

"I am particularly pleased," she said, "because my nomination is the result of the elimination of the question of sex in politics—a factor I have been teaching about and working for well over eighteen years. I am as happy about the proved fact that women can get out and pull together with men for political victory as I am about my nomination."

Again she said: "Political work must be organized and not sex-jealous."

"But whatever uncertainty surrounds the outcome of Mrs. McCormick's present campaign for election may be traced to a typically feminine reaction, not on Mrs. McCormick's part but on the part of her second opponent, Mrs. O'Neill."

Mrs. O'Neill, the first woman elected to the Illinois legislature, wanted to succeed Mrs. McCormick as Republican national committee woman from Illinois. Instead Mrs. Bertha Baur got the job. Then during the last session of the legislature she wanted to be chairman of the committee on education. This position was denied her. She blamed Mrs. McCormick for both developments and called on Republican women in Illinois to revolt against the "bossism of Mark Hanna's daughter." This revolt did not develop, and now when Mrs. McCormick is on the verge of realizing a life ambition, Mrs. O'Neill has come forward with an effort to divide her strength.

Feminism seemingly pervades the Illinois senatorial situation.

NEW FORMAL GOWN LIVELY WITH LACE

Skirt Is of Stiffened Black Lace Over Turquoise Chiffon

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—(CPA)—It looks like a long, luxurious petticoat plus a nice boudoir jacket which fastens with a belt at the waist and ends at the hips. But it happens to be a new London formal gown, with a skirt of stiffened black lace over turquoise chiffon and a topworks of chiffon garnished with the lace.

One of the newest afternoon frocks pretends to be what it isn't. Of heavy canton crepe in dark blue, it looks like a dress and short coat. It is really a dress with cut-out lace yoke and a coat-like bolero. Incidentally, it is very becoming to the plump.

That delectable shade known as egg-shell has undergone a nuance. This winter it is less egg and more sea-shell, retaining the best qualities of both. Which means to say, it still has that pearly eggshell quality infused with a delicate but none the less decided sea-shell pink.

RADIO BEAM GUIDES LANDING PLANE

Washington.—The aeronautics branch of the U. S. Department of Commerce has devised a means by which radio is used in landing airplanes in a fog.

In approaching a field, the pilot circles around it until he encounters a runway "localizing beacon." This he picks up by switching on his medium frequency receiving set. As he flies into the radio beacon beam, he throws another switch which places the landing beam receiving set in operation.

The aural signals received from the runway beacon and the landing beam are translated into visual signals which tell the pilot at a glance when he is coming above that part of the field on which he should land and at the proper angle of glide. The landing is then comparatively easy.

Berlin.—Exhaustive tests with propellers and engines have convinced one of the foremost airplane manufacturing concerns in Europe that multi-propeller planes are more practical than other types. The concern plans to construct all its planes accordingly, making one motor turn two propellers. In this way the weight of two motors is done away with and the maximum efficiency is obtained from the propellers.

BIG FOUR PACKERS FIGHT TO REENTER RETAIL BUSINESS

Appear in Court in Effort to Throw Off Consent Decree Shackles

BY FRANK I. WELLER
Washington —(AP)—Striving for a large slice of the nation's $24,000,000 food business, the "big four" packers are before the supreme court of the District of Columbia in the hardest battle of their 10-year campaign to throw off shackles of the packers' consent decree.

They are supported on one side by farm organizations which welcome any opportunity to increase competitors for their products, and opposed on the other by wholesale organizations which stand to lose heavily if the packers, with their vast distribution systems, are allowed to re-enter the retail trade.

Swift and company and Armour and company are shouldering the fight, but modification of the decree also would affect Wilson and company and the Cudahy Packing company.

They are asking that they be allowed to own and operate retail markets, to own interests in stock yards companies and terminal railroads, to have financial interests in public cold storage warehouses and to sell fresh milk and cream, and to deal in the 144 enumerated food products prohibited by the decree.

Now limited almost entirely to a wholesale business in meat and meat products, the packers contend that the decree so isolates their industry that they are incapacitated to adjust their business methods to new conditions.

The decree was entered in 1920, the packers consenting to it but making no admissions of guilt, when there was general alarm that they were about to gain a monopoly on food.

That possibility is past, they insist, pointing to the 3,000 food chain organizations which have increased chain stores from a scant 20,000 in 1920 to approximately 65,000.

During the same time, Swift and company says, its profits have remained stationary although it has doubled its sales volume.

A government chart, prepared at an expense of $1,000 to be used as evidence, shows that the Swift and Armour companies do a relatively small percentage of the nation's packing and slaughtering business.

There are some 300 independent packers not affected by the decree who are doing the same things the "big four" are restrained from doing.

GREAT SILENCE HANGS OVER STATE CAMPAIGNS

Milwaukee —(AP)—The Great Silence, that seems to come with off-year elections, is muffling the closing campaigns of Republican and Democratic aspirants for state offices.

Two years ago, at this time, the rumblings of the primary were supplanted by an unquieted roar as the rival parties found themselves, for once, nearly on equal terms.

At that time, Gov. Kohlman was running against A. G. Schmedeman, Madison's diplomat-mayor. It looked like a hard battle, and in comparison with earlier years, it was. For Schmedeman came much closer to winning than any Democrat in many elections.

This year, attendance at meetings for Phil La Follette, Republican nominee, and Charles E. Hammersley, Democratic nominee, reflects the apathy of the voters.

Fulfilling the old tradition, all the fireworks prefaced the primary, in which Hammersley was unopposed but LaFollette had the opposition of Kohlman.

The vote for Hammersley was something like one-seventh of that for Schmedeman two years ago. However, it was enough to get him on the ballot, and he is carrying on an extensive stumping tour.

LaFollette is warning against too much disinterest, and has reminded the voters that carelessness in one past general election cost the Progressive candidate his office.

There has been cries of "bolt" from disaffected ones on both sides of the political fence, but they lack the force of earlier adjurations.

GERMAN FLIERS ARE SUPERSTITIOUS LOT

Many Hunches Played by Airmen Before They Take-off on Flights

Berlin —(AP)—Pet superstitions are numerous in German aviation circles.

Friedrich Christiansen, commander of the Do-X, former commander of the hydroplane squadron, and only naval flier who was decorated with the order "Pour Le Merite" is a striking example. Ernst Udet, war ace, is another.

The German ministry of transportation is the office which issues licenses and license-numbers to air-planes. It decided to give 1930 to Germany's latest construction, the Do-X.

But the ministry had not taken superstition into consideration. For, when Christiansen was informed of the number selected, he found that the sum total of 1930 was 13.

The commander flatly refused to take the helm of the giant boat until the number was changed.

The ministry changed the license number of the Do-X to 1929.

Christiansen isn't the only superstitious pilot in Germany. Udet, with 46 enemy planes to his credit and one of Germany's best stunt fliers, will never enter his plane except from the left side. Moreover, on the back of the seat of any plane that Udet flies he describes the initials of his lady friend.

Others fliers are especially superstitious in regard to wearing apparel, and will never, for instance, put on a new pair of gloves until they have been taken up into the air by another plane.

HEFLIN FACES STRUGGLE FOR SENATE SEAT

Challenges Democratic Party in Alabama — Puts Own Tickets Into Field

Montgomery, Ala. — (AP) — After more than three decades of unquestioned dominance in Alabama, the Democratic party this year has opposition, not from its traditional enemy, the Republican party, but from a ticket of "Jeffersonians" headed by Senator J. Thomas Heflin.

Not since the Populist movement in the middle nineties has the state been so stirred by a general election campaign for state offices. Speakers for both tickets have carried the issues into every dale and hamlet and have turned to the radio to reach other voters.

In other states farm relief, prohibition and the tariff have played the major part in the campaign, but in Alabama they have been secondary, as the real issue is the right of the Democratic party to discipline its members.

The Jeffersonian ticket was the outgrowth of a resolution adopted by the state Democratic executive committee on Dec. 15, 1929, barring candidates for state office all persons who "voted for or openly advocated" election of the Republican presidential ticket in 1928.

HAVE OWN TICKETS

Barred from seeking renomination on the Democratic ticket, Senator Heflin, for 34 years holder of an elective office as a Democrat, rallied his supporters and organized the Jeffersonians who in addition put forward candidates for governor and lieutenant governor and in some counties complete tickets.

Senator Heflin opposes John H. Bankhead, son of the late United States Senator John H. Bankhead whom Senator Heflin succeeded.

B. M. Miller, former associate justice of the state supreme court and Democratic nominee for governor is opposed by Hugh A. Locke of Birmingham, former member of the Democratic executive committee, who like Senator Heflin took the stump against former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Democratic presidential nominee in 1928.

The third of the Democratic nominees who has opposition is Hugh D. Merrill of Anniston, who is opposed by Dempsey M. Powell of Greenville, another bitter opponent of former Governor Smith.

In organizing the Jeffersonians declared they were seeking to "reorganize" the Democratic party in Alabama which they charged was under the domination of "Tammany, John J. Raskob and the worst interests," and through their chairman, J. W. Wadsworth, Gadsden banker, declared themselves "the dry wing of the Democratic party."

Bankhead, Miller and Merrill and speakers in their behalf have declared throughout the state that prohibition is not an issue, since each of the candidates is personally dry and the Democratic party in Alabama "has always been dry."

THE EXECUTIVE GROUP

The Jeffersonians have been active in attacking the 27 members of the Democratic executive committee who "voted to put up the bars."

Locke has declared that, if elected, he will ask the legislature to call a special election for a new committee.

On the emblem of the Jeffersonians that will appear at the head of their ticket is the slogan "down with the 27."

The legislative record of Senator Heflin has been the target of many speakers, while Senator Hugo Black and several congressmen have been attacking the Republican national administration, charging that farm relief is a "farce" and that the high tariff bill is responsible for unemployment.

Bankhead has attacked Heflin's legislative record, charging that his vote against the Borah resolution to limit tariff revision at the last session of congress has been responsible for the general upward revision of rates. Senator Heflin also was charged with being friendly to the Alabama Power company's bid for Muscle Shoals.

Senator Heflin in turn has charged Bankhead with being a "Roman Catholic sympathizer" and with being unfriendly to the working men and the farmer.

While the Republican party did not formally endorse the Jeffersonian ticket, in convention, it voted not to put a ticket in the field and speakers said they "owed a debt" to Senator Heflin for his aid in 1928 and the election of the Jeffersonians "would wreck the Democratic party for fifty years."

Senator Heflin has denied that he asked for such action but said he wanted the "vote of every white Protestant to defeat the Tammany-Raskob influence in the general election."

ATTACKS RASKOB

In all his speeches Senator Heflin has attacked John J. Raskob, chairman of the national Democratic executive committee, Tammany and "Roman Catholic influences."

In the gubernatorial race, Miller has advocated economy in state finances, good roads and disbandment of the state law enforcement force.

Locke's 13 plank platform declares for good roads, retention of the state law enforcement department and for re-organization of the state executive committee.

Of the ten Democratic congressmen, only four have opposition. W. S. Bankhead in the Tenth and Miles C. Algood in the Seventh facing Republican candidates, Charles P. Lunsford contesting with Bankhead and John R. Isbell, with Algood.

In the Fourth District a Jeffersonian, Ed. Rank, seeks the seat held by the League of Women Voters, Democrat and an Independent, Hollie P. Ruffin, is contesting with George Hurdleston, Democrat, in the Ninth.

Automobile Makers Fight Russian Import Embargo

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington. The politicians and business interests which are trying to obtain an embargo on all imports from Soviet Russia appear to be in for a hot argument with the important automobile industry.

Two schools of thought have grown up lately about Russia and the dispute rather resembles that over the Hawley-Smoot tariff act, which manufacturers fearing foreign competition within the United States thought was a very fine thing and which those who wanted to maintain their export markets felt was pretty terrible.

Lately there has been built up a theory that when Soviet Russia hedges wheat on the Chicago market or exports a surplus or engages in any other legitimate business activity she is committing an international crime, and that it is more heinous than it would be if any other nation did the same thing.

Both in America and Europe this theory has been propagated by those who believe that if Russia could be stopped from exporting anything there would be that much more export business and domestic sales for the other countries.

The other attitude, shared by equally hard-headed business men, is that Russia is a good customer, is going to be a better one and that there is no sense in socking a good customer in the nose.

PRaises SOVIETS

General Motors, the world's largest exporter, appears to have gone the whole hog in favor of encouraging Russia through an enthusiastic pronouncement in Paris by James D. Mooney, vice president and manager of its export business.

While Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and leaders in such industries as lumber, coal and manganese were shouting about the Red menace in unison with America's most distinguished red-baiters, Mooney was on a 4,000-mile excursion into Russia, to find out what was really going on.

He emerged ecstatic, urging recognition of the Soviet. He denied that Russia was trying to demoralize world trade by dumping.

The Soviet government is as stable as any government in the world, Mooney says, because the Russian people are enthusiastically supporting its strong centralized authority. He predicted complete success for the famous Five Year Plan.

"Life in Russia today is vital and dynamic with real purpose," Mooney is quoted as saying. "The Russians are a people with whom we have much in common. The two nations are free from entanglements that induce deep-seated hatreds. Both have broad horizons that induce a vision of the future; neither of us is afraid to take a chance."

AIM AT SAME GOAL

"Our methods of approach may be different, but it strikes me that both of us are aiming at the same goal of welfare for all our people."

Furthermore, Mooney said, automotive equipment was one of Russia's most vital needs. Her good credit made her a good business risk, but she must be allowed to sell her surplus.

BUSINESS PICKS UP WELL IN FURS, DEALERS REPORT

People of Moderate Means as Well as Richer Neighbors Pep Up Sales

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press Washington—(CPA)—The fur coat of commerce is not going to decorate the backs of the rich alone this winter. This is shown conclusively by the renewed interest in the sale of furs which has made itself evident in the retail shops patronized alike by the rich and those of moderate means.

The fur industry was virtually at a standstill for nearly a year, according to the textile division of the department of commerce. Now buying has been stimulated largely by reductions in prices and there is reason to believe that the sales of the next two and a half months will be heavy.

Signs of recovery began to appear in August and these were reflected in the prices paid for raw skins in the late summer and early fall auctions. Sales have been held down somewhat by the unseasonable weather in some sections.

The lower skin prices enabled cloth garment manufacturers to use better furs as trimmings and there were produced large quantities of fur garments of attractive type which are retailing at prices well below the general levels of recent years.

PRICE DROP EVIDENT

The drop in raw pelts is clearly shown by the import figures available at the department of commerce. In some types, the import price in August and September was about one half that paid in the corresponding period of 1929. This has materially affected the prices of mink, fox, squirrel, ermine and fitch.

The department says officially that reports from the trade indicate sales of furs will be better than a year ago. It is true, however, that the late 1929 sales were affected by the stock market break.

Stores all over the country, according to information reaching the department, have been reporting large sales of medium priced fur garments and fur trimmed garments. This is giving the industry the necessary basis of volume which will permit of profit on the higher priced merchandise. Retailers and manufacturers are in better financial position and the trappers are starting their 1930-31 season with a cheerful outlook.

The large accumulation of lower pelts from the last trapping season has been absorbed and it will require only a moderate demand to use up the higher grade skins now in storage.

unsettled political situations. Even in France, which has been going ahead economically, our manufacturers have been up against deep resentment at the American tariff act, which expressed itself in higher duties amounting in some cases to 50 per cent.

"Bets" on Beer

Fred Pabst, Sr., whose name has been known in the brewing industry for years, can almost be said to have bet $800,000 that real beer will soon be legal in the United States. markets would become stagnant under excess supplies.

There are about 25 by-products into which the surplus grapes are expected to go. The by-products cut, however, will take only a very small percentage of the 375,000 tons.

What is left will go unprocessed and unsold rather than allowed to compete with that part of the crop for which a demand is in sight.

The control board will pay an average price of $7 to $8 a ton for the surplus grapes. There is an indicated market for 160,000 tons of raisins.

OFFICIALS APPEAL TO CAR OWNERS TO TEST HEADLIGHTS

Police Chief, Sheriff and Highway Commissioner
Join in Warning

Police Chief George T. Prim, Sheriff John Lappen and Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, joined in an appeal this week to Appleton and Outagamie county motorists to have their headlights tested.

There are official headlight testing stations throughout the county, they said, and motorists cannot offer the excuse that they didn't know where to go to have lights tested.

This is the time of the year when glaring and defective headlights are more apt to cause damage, the officials said. During the fall, pavements are often slippery, and fog, rain, sleet and snow are often present, adding to the danger of traffic.

To the motorists who are forced to drive with natural elements causing considerable trouble, there must be added the constant danger of accidents as the result of being blinded by glaring headlights of approaching machines or of being misled by approaching cars which have a single headlight.

Many accidents would be avoided if drivers would take the precaution of having their headlights tested, they pointed out. Many deaths and serious injuries as well as loss in the damage to cars, could be eliminated if all motorists respected the right of fellow travelers and did not subject them to the dangers of driving against glaring or defective lights.

PAVEMENTS SLIPPERY
In addition, the officials said, wet slippery pavements increase the danger resulting from glaring and defective lights. During the fall months accidents resulting at least partially from defective lights increase greatly. These can be reduced if motorists will cooperate with the department and have their lights tested.

All of the officials pointed out that they did not desire to cause the arrest of drivers, who through lack of knowledge, failed to have the lights on their cars tested. They pointed out that state law provides that motorcycle police shall tag all cars found with defective headlights and the driver must then either have the defect repaired within a certain time or be taken into court and fined.

Special attention is to be paid by both city and county motorcycle officers to the enforcing of the headlight laws, these officials said. Instructions to this effect are to be issued to the officers this week.

The officials also called attention of motorists to the courtesy of turning their headlights down when passing another car. They pointed out that almost all cars are now equipped so that the driver can easily switch the lights to focus more on the road and take the glare away from the approaching drivers' eyes. The officials asked all motorists to kindly observe this courtesy. Make a habit of turning your headlights down when passing another car at night, they urged.

LIKE MAGIC PIMPLES DISAPPEAR

Pittsburgh Man Grateful

One of the many wonderful things about Peterson's Ointment — you don't have to wait long before it accomplishes results.

If you are troubled with pimples on your face and back — just rub on Peterson's Ointment before going to bed — rub it in good — wake up in the morning with your skin already starting to clear.

The mighty healing power of Peterson's rapidly banishes those ugly blemishes and makes you the proud possessor of charming skin beauty.

Mr. Ed. W. King of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "I had pimples all over my face for over a year. I had used other Ointments but they did no good. It was not until I tried Peterson's that I found the way to end pimples."

Pimples have disappeared in 24 hrs. when Peterson's Ointment was rubbed well into the skin — one 35 cent box will prove it — all drug stores. Adv.

Largest Tissue Machine

The world's largest and fastest tissue paper machine is now in operation at the Northern Paper Mills plant at Green Bay. Installation of the mammoth machine was started about a year ago and the apparatus has been in operation for several months.

The machine is designed primarily to produce Northern Tissue paper and its additional production was required by the fast increasing sales on paper rolls. A special building to house the installation of this new machine was constructed as part of the plan of expansion which has been underway at the Northern Paper company mill for the past nine years. As a result of this nine year development, the mills are now the largest self-contained tissue mills.

Figures just released for the first nine months ending Sept. 30, show 1930 sales of paper to be the largest in the company's history.

ARKANSAS PRISON FARM NETS STATE $100,000 IN YEAR

Expect Increased Revenue
There This Year from Corn Crop

Little Rock, Ark. — (AP) — The economic bugaboo has been efficiently swatted in the Arkansas state penal system.

Eleven hundred convicts who do their own guarding and farming in a 19,000-acre plantation project have made a profit of $100,000 for the state above $875,000 operating costs for the past fiscal year.

Although running on a -profit, Warden S. L. Todhunter has found need for only a minimum of guards in the entire system, which embraces the "walls" or penitentiary proper at Little Rock, and two state prison farms, the paid personnel totals only 18. Of this number, none is a paid guard.

Overcrowding, blamed for recent penitentiary riots, has not become one of the evils of prison life in Arkansas, due to the elasticity of the system.

At the farm at Tucker, housing approximately 650 white prisoners, and at Cummins where 450 negro convicts work, prison inmates live in seven stockades scattered over 19,000 acres of land, of which 17,000 acres are under cultivation this year.

As the need arises for additional quarters, the solution is simple. A new stockade is built by the prisoners. Each stockade is complete in itself.

At the penitentiary proper, built to house 400, the average convict population is about 75.

The prison farms last year raised 3,750 bales of cotton, 30,000 bushels of corn, 30,000 bushels of potatoes and 300 tons of hay and alfalfa. Large plantings of garden truck supplied the prisoners and the surplus was sold on local markets.

This year, says the warden, an increased revenue from corn is expected, due to shortage caused by the drought. The prison corn, well irrigated, stood the dry spell well.

Washington, D. C. — Tests conducted at March Field, Cal., have proven that a fleet of airplanes can successfully battle a forest fire. By lining up several planes near the front line of the fire, the gale created by their propellers is sufficient enough to blow the blaze backward. Finding nothing to keep it burning, the fire is extinguished.
